

Lester Patrick Legend in His Time

From Stick Boy to Hall of Fame

Won Fame As Player, Manager

Lester Patrick
... man of integrity

The Silver Fox of hockey is dead.

Lester Patrick, whose climb from stick boy to the hockey Hall of Fame made him a legend in his own time, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday. He was 76 and had been in failing health for several months.

Four years ago he retired from active participation in hockey, a sport with which he was directly associated for more than 50 years and upon which he has left the Patrick influence indelibly imprinted.

PLAYING STAR

The most conspicuously successful of a family notable on the Canadian hockey scene, Patrick was a playing star from his early youth until he was 39 and became one of the most resourceful managers the game has ever known.

He inaugurated the game's first major farm system; devised, with his brother Frank, the profitable playoff system still used and dozens of rule improvements, and helped introduce professional hockey to British Columbia.

SONS STARRING

He climaxed his career with the vice-presidency of Madison Square Garden, a tribute to his vital part in the success of hockey in New York, where his two sons, Murray and Lynn, starred as players.

Today, Murray (Muzz) Patrick is vice-president and general manager of the Rangers and Lynn holds the same post with Boston Bruins, keeping the Patrick name active in the National Hockey League. They have been here since their father became ill again last week.

Lester was born Dec. 30, 1883, in Drummondville, Que., the first of nine sons of Joseph Patrick, an Irishman and stout Methodist storekeeper and lumberman.

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Against this background and with a tolerance developed as he grew up among French-Canadians, Patrick later earned a reputation as a man of integrity and unlimited moral courage. For many years when he was a manager, he never signed his players to formal contracts — they accepted his word and he honored it.

He received his first pair of skates at the age of 10 and two years later his mother gave him his first hockey stick.

When he was 13, he became stick boy in Montreal for Ottawa's fabled Silver-Seven.

GOOD ENOUGH

"There were seven men on their team and I lived to see the day when I was good enough to play against four of them," Lester recalled recently.

A year later, he was playing hockey in earnest on one of the "Street" teams in Montreal when every street had a team. "It was quite something," Lester once reminisced. "We got pretty good and I was picked on the street all-star team."

Lester graduated from Montreal High School at 16 and entered McGill University the

City 'Delightful' Weather Perfect

Is Victoria really like a little bit of old England? "Oh, absolutely," according to Lord Rootes of Ramsbury, chairman of the Dollar Exports Council, who arrived here yesterday. "It's just like home."

Lord Rootes, who is making his 13th trip here, wore a B.C. Centennial tartan tie. "Victoria is a delightful place," he added. "It's a wonderful part of the world. I've been here 15 times and the weather has always been perfect." (See also Page 3.)

China Denounced

New Red Far East Crisis Likely, Herter Warns

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States State Secretary Christian A. Herter said Wednesday the Communist bloc likely will launch new "probing" action, especially in the Far East.

Herter coupled this warning with a fresh denunciation of Red China's government as an outlaw regime intent on grabbing its smaller neighbors by force.

Herter outlined his views at a closed-door strategy meeting of representatives of the eight Southeast Asia Treaty Organization members.

NANETTE VANDERBILT

Nanette Vanishes

CANNES, France (UPI) — Mrs. Patricia Murphy Wallace Vanderbilt, a platinum-blond divorced wife of millionaire sportsman Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., said Wednesday her 18-year-old daughter "Nanette" has disappeared and that she fears she has eloped. She said Nanette might have eloped with a U.S. sergeant or a young French actor.

Race Bias Outlawed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A city bylaw providing for a $100 fine or up to two months imprisonment for any licensed business in Vancouver refusing service to a person on racial grounds was approved Tuesday night despite opposition terming it "undemocratic."

Opposition came from the apartment and rooming house operators' association, which said there had been only three cases of racial discrimination in Vancouver in 25 years.

The prospectors, Pat and Percy McDonald of Coquitlam, B.C., were trapped in the abandoned mine at McGillivray Falls, 15 miles south of here, when log supports at the entrance gave way.

CHANCES GOOD

The rescue team from Bralorne Pioneer Mines Limited reached the area by jeep shortly after a company helicopter reached the scene. The team reported that indications were the cave-in was extensive, but the chances of getting the men out appeared good.

Members said it will take about 10 hours to reach the prospectors through 15 feet of rock, dirt and rotten timber.

A company spokesman said the old mine, abandoned many years ago, is fairly deep and that there is a good chance the men have plenty of air.

An air force helicopter is expected to leave Vancouver today to assist in the rescue. Bad weather grounded the helicopter Tuesday night.

COPTER DUE

Pat McDonald was in the mine tunnel when the log supports gave way. His father, Percy, and nephew, Percy McDonald, Jr., were at the entrance. His father is believed to have run into the mine while Percy, Jr., ran out.

Mining officials at Vancouver said they understood tapings had been heard through the cave-in and believed both men inside were safe.

Two Men Trapped In Empty Mine

BRALORNE, B.C. (CP)—An eight-man rescue team Wednesday night reached a remote gold mine near here in which two prospectors were trapped.

'Women Wisest'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. W. V. (Betty) McDonald, a past-president of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Association and an active social worker here, went to bat for the weaker sex Wednesday at the B.C. Corrections Association meeting.

"Women are wiser than men," she said. "We know less but we understand more."

Women Split On Hanging

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The National Council of Women of Canada showed a divided opinion Wednesday on whether the hangman's noose should be removed from criminal punishment. Despite a plea from Western delegates, the council felt the question required further deliberation.

City to Vancouver — Right Downtown

A downtown-to-downtown helicopter service between Victoria and Vancouver next year appeared certain last night when it was announced from Vancouver that financing arrangements are assured.

Steps are in progress to merge Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., which has been planning the service for some time, with Britain's huge Bristol Aeroplane Co. Ltd.

PUT UP MONEY

One of the main terms of the deal is that the British company will put up money for the Victoria-Vancouver service, which requires an investment of about $4,000,000. Okanagan Helicopters is now completing aircraft and route studies for the service.

NO OBSTACLE

Okanagan president Glenn McPherson said earlier this week that the studies so far show no obstacle to inaugurating the inter-city service some time in 1961.

Studies are being made of Sikorsky and Vertol aircraft. The company plans to operate a 25-minute service between Victoria and Vancouver.

FIRM DATE

Now that financing appears certain, company officials are expected to announce soon a firm starting date for the service.

Final details of the Bristol-Okanagan merger are expected within 90 days, it was announced at a press conference in Vancouver.

By then Canadian Bristol is expected to make an offer to purchase all outstanding shares of Okanagan Helicopters at $4.50 a share "in cash or other valuable consideration."

Murdered Turks Uncovered

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—The bodies of murdered victims of the ousted Adnan Menderes regime have been found in common graves and refrigeration chambers here and in Istanbul, a revolutionary spokesman said Wednesday. (See Page 2).

The spokesman also raised the possibility of members of Menderes' regime facing death sentences for murder.

He said most of the bodies were of students.

'Didn't Know About Spying'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration knew nothing about espionage operations of the U-2 spy plane, Senate investigators were told Wednesday by Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator.

He said the agency used information from the Central Intelligence Agency when it claimed the U-2 was on a weather reconnaissance flight.

Freedom Works

'Points to Peace' Adlai's Strategy

CHICAGO (AP) — Adlai Stevenson Wednesday outlined a five-point "grand strategy for peace."

He urged the United States to adopt such a program to "recover the initiative in the cold war" and "restore confidence in American leadership."

The Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956 submitted a plan looking toward general and complete disarmament under international control.

He proposed that the U.S.:
• Build up "deterrent power and a limited war capability with our NATO allies that does not depend on the budget bureaucrats."

• Strengthen the Western alliance by "building a stronger political and economic community in the free world" and setting up an Atlantic council.

• Join in a long-range aid program for poor countries.

• Make it plain that general and complete disarmament under international control is "an imperative for all of us."

• Show the world that freedom works in the United States in meeting needs for schooling, research, health, housing and all forms of public services.

Psychologists Against Discipline 'Major Cause of Delinquency'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A school principal and teacher for 44 years, told an open forum at the B.C. Corrections Association meeting that psychologists and others in the social sciences are doing an important job.

Stanley Meadows, 70, a

Many, however, were not helping matters in the field of education and disciplining of youth.

Children need and appreciate discipline, he said.

"Contributing to juvenile delinquency is a crime in our country," he continued. "Yet among the greatest contributors to juvenile delinquency today are the social scientists who have been allowed to paint a policy of permissiveness and have given the kids a bum steer."

Peace Hydro Could Doom Fraser Fish

By ALEC MERRIMAN
The proposed Wenner-Gren Peace River hydro development could be disastrous to the Peace River fishery, if a permanent or periodic diversion of water from the Peace system to the Fraser system results, the provincial government has been warned by fishery management officials, who indicate such a diversion would be possible.

Big fear is that the project could cause a reverse in the water table that would see northern pike, whitefish, pickereel and other fish common to the Peace system enter the Fraser system.

Fishery officials have stated that they do not know exactly what would happen if the fish

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Craigflower Manor, the big house that the Puget Sound Agricultural Company built 107 years ago for Kenneth McKenzie, the bailiff of Craigflower Farm, has come to life as a tourist attraction.

The house has been there all the time. Few of the thousands of motorists passing back and forth on the old Island Highway by Craigflower Bridge have paid any attention to it. Few of them knew what it was.

I didn't know what it was, and I passed there every day for a long time. I just saw it dimly as an old building behind some trees.

But there it stood, one of Victoria's historic buildings, neglected. For a long time it served humbly as the annex to an auto court. Now Wally Fletcher of Eaton's display department has taken it over as a spare-time project.

He has tidied the house, dusted off some of the original furnishings, borrowed some 19th-century utensils from old Victoria families, hired two custodians and opened the house to the public.

I dropped in to see him last night. Wally was in the yard, pottering around a spick-and-span old carriage which, he said had been lent to him by Mrs. A. J. O'Reilly. It had belonged to Peter O'Reilly, a noted figure in colonial days.

Tall, White House

This was a tall white house with a massive, studded door. Inside was Mrs. Pat Burnett, "historian" in charge for the evening. She wore a mid-19th-century dress made by Mrs. Fletcher from a picture in a book.

"The idea is that Victoria has a history of its own, apart from the 'little bit of old England' stuff," said Wally.

Kenneth McKenzie, a dour Scot, didn't make a great splash in history. He was a hard-working man with a good eye to the balance sheets, and when he was given general charge of the company's farming operations, he took a sour view of the other bailiffs, who were leading pleasure-filled lives as country gentlemen.

Puget Sound Agricultural Company was a subsidiary of the Hudson's Bay Co. Of the four farms—Viewfield, Constance Cove Farm, Craigflower and Colwood, Craigflower is the only "big house" that survives.

Wally and Pat showed me into the big room that had the fireplace where meals were cooked. Wally pointed to a cylindrical gadget with a hook that hung on a swinging rack.

Turns Meat Around

"Nowadays they'd call it a rotisserie," he said. "Turns the meat around as it cooks. You wind this one up. Clockwork. There's nothing new. And this thing you might call an early pressure cooker. Feel the weight."

The iron pot with a lid was heavy, all right. It had clamps on the lid, and safety valve, all the features of a pressure cooker in Queen Victoria's day.

"The women who handled this must have grown muscles," I said. In a glass case that chiefly contained moulds for making bullets was an invitation: "Capt. Nicolls and the Ward Room Officers, HMCS Cormorant."

Commonplace Objects

There were other things, commonplace objects in their day, glossed over with romance by years: Hooks for pulling off riding boots. Dome screens to put over dishes to keep away flies. Stone hot water bottles.

Then up the stairs, with their curiously wrought and polished bannisters, made of pieces of dogwood cunningly fitted together. "A good course for the kids to slide down," said Wally. I had seen the picture of Mackenzie and his daughters, unsmiling, looking as though they had never had any fun in their lives.

I couldn't picture them sliding down bannisters. But most people looked glum for the camera in those days. The big bedrooms had huge carved beds, which had come to Victoria round the Horn. The small bedrooms commanded a nice view of the Gorge. There seemed to be no limit to the number of bedrooms. Some had their own fireplaces.

"Just the size house I would like to live in," I said. "Room to rattle around."

"You'd freeze," Wally said. "Hard to heat."

Seeing me away at the front door, Wally pointed to the adjoining corner lot on the head of the road and said: "There's a drive-in restaurant going there. I don't mind. It'll bring the people. But eventually I'd like to have the trees planted all around. Seal in the old-world spirit."

Art Gallery Displaying Popular Model Home

A beautifully-built model of an eight-room house, complete down to the most minute detail, has gone on display at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

The model was built during the Second World War by the late Lt. Col. L. E. Broome and became well-known to Victorians when it was displayed to raise funds for the Red Cross at that time.

The building itself is made from wood that came from the old organ in Christ Church Cathedral while furnishings are made out of various materials including plastic and wood from a tree that grew in New Zealand 400 years ago and from a golf club smashed in despair at the 9th hole.

Peace Project May Create Vast B.C. Vacationland

A vacationland unparalleled elsewhere in British Columbia may result from the proposed $632,000,000 hydro development on the Peace River.

Already a battle for the conservation of the Rocky Mountain trench recreational assets is building up and it may parallel the long campaign to preserve Buttle Lake on Vancouver Island.

The Buttle Lake battle ended in a partial victory for conservationists who lost their wilderness area, but gained a fully cleared lake and reservoir area which is now being used by thousands of vacationers.

The fisheries management division of the provincial recreation department has already asked that the Peace River development company be made to provide roads, access trails, campsites and boat launching facilities within the reservoir area for the use and enjoyment of the public.

The cry will undoubtedly be taken up by sportsmen all over British Columbia.

The project would create a reservoir, 250 miles long and with a surface area of 800 square miles.

"Lake trout should become widely distributed within the reservoir area," the report states.

Peace Could Doom Fish

held in check by nature, but introduced into a new environment the effect is anyone's guess.

Whitefish carry a larval tapeworm (diphyllobothrium) which could be fatal to humans, if the meat is not properly cooked. The tapeworm larvae can be carried by mountain whitefish, coho salmon, sockeye, kokanee, cutthroat trout, dolly varden and lake trout. All of these species could be threatened.

RUIN FISHERY

If pike were to get into the Fraser system they could eventually ruin the fishery of the Fraser River by predation on young salmon. Dr. C. C. Lindsay warned at a recent natural resources conference.

"If a flow-reversal to the Fraser system were to occur near Summit or Arctic Lakes, fishes other than pike could be transferred to the Fraser system," the fisheries management division of the provincial recreation department warned in a report that has been apparently kept under governmental wraps.

PIKE TRANSFERS

"Pike transfers from the Peace to Fraser River drainage area must be avoided in the vicinity of Summit Lake, near Prince George, and at Arctic Lake, a headwater lake of the Parsnip River," the report warns. In these areas the extreme southern extensions of the Peace River drainage are within very short distances of the Muskeg and McGregor River portions of the Fraser River drainage system.

The two drainage systems are separated at these points by sections of relatively low-lying terrain. Any increase in the water levels of Summit or Arctic Lakes might be sufficient to permanently, or periodically, cause water to be diverted from the Peace to Fraser system at these points.

"Introduction of northern pike to the Fraser River drainage system would have serious consequences. One effect would be the predation of pike upon young salmon and trout. Another would be introduction of a tapeworm—trienophorus crassus—to salmon and trout populations."

High Arrow B.C.'s Best Bet

Much More Profitable Than Mica Creek

By TERRY HAMMOND

The controversial High Arrow dam which British Columbia has insisted upon as part of any Columbia River development would be 2½ times as profitable an investment as Mica Creek, the Colonist learned yesterday.

Provincial engineers can show that during the debt amortization periods of the two dams High Arrow would return $5 worth of benefits for every dollar invested, while Mica Creek would return only $2 worth of benefits for every dollar invested.

If both projects were financed over a period of 30 years, High Arrow would bring $350,000,000 worth of benefits from a $70,000,000 investment while Mica Creek would return $600,000,000 investment from a $300,000,000 investment.

The figures show why experts say B.C.'s negotiators will not come to any Columbia development agreement with Ottawa which does not include the High Arrow project.

Yesterday observers were convinced that when agreement comes between the two governments it will be on the broad basis that work on High Arrow and Mica Creek would start simultaneously.

The relative figures on the two projects which were obtained here yesterday are based on the two units of the Columbia development starting at the same time.

They are referred to in technical terms as "benefit-cost ratios" which take into consideration not only relative power potentials of the two dams, but returns from flood control and downstream benefits stemming from increased generating capacities at U.S. power installations farther down the river.

Benefit-cost ratio of High Arrow if it is started at the same time as the Mica Creek dam is said to be 5-1. For Mica Creek engineers use a figure of approximately 2-1.

Part of the benefit-cost ratio advantage attributable to High Arrow stems from the fact that by acting as a water-release regulator on the Columbia it will guarantee maximum efficiency of Mica Creek power generating installations.

The High Arrow ratio also takes into consideration a factor announced in the Colonist Tuesday when Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williams confirmed that High Arrow has a previously unsuspected intermittent hydro potential of 275,000 horsepower.

A further factor in establishing the advantageous High Arrow benefit-cost ratio is that the project would produce yields from downstream benefits some 18 to 24 months before the larger Mica Creek for any benefits would accrue installation.

MP Lashes Tories

'Free Enterprise Wiped Out'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Erhard Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam) charged Wednesday that "economic anarchy" in Canada was squeezing out "Ma of the corner store," and making it easier and more respectable for monopolies and combines to exist.

Regier bitterly attacked the government's proposed amendments to anti-combines laws and said the Conservatives were helping big business interests which contributed to their campaign fund in the last federal election.

"Real free enterprise is all but wiped out in Canada today," he said.

The amendments to the Combines Investigation Act and Criminal Code would "open the door high wide and handsome," Regier added, "to the exploitation of the consumers in the interests of monopoly and at the expense of the few free enterprise small businessmen."

After a long silence by government members following Justice Minister Fulton's introduction of the controversial legislation Monday, Gordon Aiken (PC, Parry Sound-Muskoka) defended the amendments, particularly that banning loss-leader selling practices.

The use of discounts on some products by retailers to attract customers was "dealing a death blow to many other small businessmen," he said. He also praised amendments against misleading advertising, price misrepresentation and the easing of restrictions against manufacturers maintaining retail prices.

FARCE INDEED

Regier said fines now imposed under the legislation were "a farce indeed." He reminded the House, Prime Minister Diefenbaker in opposition, had recommended that offenders under the anti-combines laws should be imprisoned.

"This is a very far cry from the demands of the prime minister at that time," he added.

Farmers Boiling

WARNER, Alta. (CP)—The Warner local of the Farmers' Union of Alberta Wednesday warned it is prepared "to break civil laws in Canada if necessary" if an application by a Hutterite colony to purchase a ranch in this area is granted.

"We have reached the end of our patience. There is seething resentment which can erupt at any time," a spokesman said.

REGINALD MAUDLING ... won't suffer

Take Chance On Trade With Britain

Canada need have no fear that she will suffer on world markets through the creation of trading groups in Europe, Rt. Hon. Reginald Maudling, president of Britain's Board of Trade, said here last night.

He predicted new trade agreements would increase markets for most Canadian products.

WITH ROOTS

Mr. Maudling, who is accompanied by Lord Rootes of Ramsbury, chairman of the Dollar Exports Council, arrived here yesterday as part of a North American sweep to see how further trade between Britain and the U.S. and Canada can be promoted.

"There are growing opportunities for British trade in Canada if people want to take up those opportunities," he said.

BUYING MORE

Britain is buying more goods from Canada than it is selling and efforts will be made to correct this imbalance, Mr. Maudling stated.

Both Mr. Maudling and Lord Rootes met with B.C. cabinet ministers but "nothing specific" was discussed.

PRETTY HIGH

Mr. Maudling said Britain had been investing at a "pretty high rate" of $90,000,000 a year in Canada.

"Total British investments in Canada now stand at about $3,000,000,000 and we're only sorry that it hasn't been more," he said.

Lord Rootes, head of the large British automobile manufacturing firm of the same name, said the advent of the U.S. "compact" cars had had little effect on British cars in North America.

BIGGER BOOST

"As a matter of fact in British Columbia you've had a slight increase of about one per cent in domestic car registrations while the sale of British cars here has risen by some four per cent," he said.

Lord Rootes said he had discussed the possibility of the establishment of a car assembly plant in B.C. with Premier W. A. C. Bennett during his last visit here, some months ago.

NOT GOOD

"The economics of such a thing didn't look too good then," he said.

"I think Britain has done quite well (in postwar trade)," Lord Rootes went on, "but despite what has been done more could have been done if we had proceeded more vigorously."

Small Firms 'Betrayed'

By Canadian Chamber

OTTAWA (CP)—Small businessmen belonging to local chambers of commerce are being "betrayed" by their national organization, Erhart Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam) said Wednesday.

He said in the Commons that the Canadian Chamber of Commerce represents the same interests as the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Both groups were "completely dominated by vested interests—the big outfits."

Local chambers of commerce and boards of trade "do not realize how they are misrepresented by the national organization when it makes its annual presentation to the federal government," he said.

Small businessmen, striving to improve their lot through local organizations, were being "completely betrayed at the national level."

State Medicine

Doctors Against; Doctors in Favor!

SAKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons in a statement issued Wednesday said that "of 694 doctors in private practice in the province, only eight are not in complete agreement with the stand of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan as being unalterably opposed to a program of government controlled medicine."

(CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas said Wednesday 60 per cent of Saskatchewan's doctors are in favor of the CCF government's proposed compulsory pre-paid medical care plan.

He said he had conducted a private survey and estimated that 60 per cent of the doctors in the province are in agreement with the plan.

Twenty Years After

EXACTLY 20 years ago this day the epic of Dunkirk was drawing to a close. Long lines of men still remained on the beaches under fire, waiting patiently to be taken off, but the next night the ordeal was over. The most marvellous evacuation in history had been accomplished.

Dunkirk ever since has been writ large in British annals, taking its place alongside Corunna, Waterloo and Trafalgar as a great drama highlighted by courage and fortitude. Probably these are the two chief elements of British arms, which glow the more when the way is hard and the hope seems forlorn.

Dunkirk was not a victory but a defeat, as the realistic Winston Churchill told the British House of Commons. But it was a defeat which robbed Hitler of victory; Dunkirk snatched 233,039 British and 112,546 Allied soldiers from under Hitler's nose. It made possible the subsequent if long-drawn out final victory over the German forces.

Dunkirk stirred the British nation to fresh heights of endeavor. With its Commonwealth it stood alone at a moment when the hearts of others faltered, or they remained neutral. But its soldiers lived to fight another day, rescued in the face of great odds by the heroism of countless amateur small boat men and the stern purpose of the Royal Navy. The home front sacrifice of Britain was yet to come but June 3, 1940, signalled the beginning of the end, far-off though it was, to Nazi ambition.

So long as history is taught, read and absorbed so long will Dunkirk loom large in men's minds. Defeat is often a greater spur than victory, for it reveals the spirit and inner strength of a nation and of those who bear its arms. Dunkirk was such a drama, and the whole free world breathed in relief when the last British soldier left the fiery furnace of the Dunkirk beaches.

Caution the Watchword

THE defusing of two highly dangerous bombs by naval experts yesterday put an end to that menace after some good teamwork all around. The charges, a smoke bomb and a high explosive bomb, were found off the beaches of Quadra Island by individuals who had the good sense to report their discovery to the nearest authority. Skin divers retrieved the bombs, which were then rendered harmless by explosive experts of the Royal Canadian Navy. It could have been otherwise if the discovery had gone unreported. Either of the charges could well have proved fatal to any member of the public who tampered with them, out of curiosity.

The history of the two bombs is also worth recalling. Both apparently were released by air force units, probably in practice runs during the Second World War. Even long immersion and the lapse of years, however, failed to lessen their potential destructiveness. When found they were still very dangerous left-overs from that period. Flyers in training at Comox and on occasion RCN ships from Esquimalt used the wartime practice ranges in the Gulf of Georgia set aside for the purpose. It is entirely possible that other unexploded charges may turn up in somewhat similar fashion. If they do, their presence should be reported immediately; and, pending defusing, they should be left untouched.

Off many coasts where the war raged or where practice manoeuvres were required there has been a slow recovery of literally hundreds of unexploded charges in analogous circumstances. For a time the English Channel had to be watched for unexploded magnetic mines. Minesweepers were employed for years in the post-war period on work of this nature. On land of course the same thing was taking place in the tillage and cultivation of ground that was once in armed dispute. All that is well known, but the hazard is that people may think it does not apply on the coast, so far from the actual scenes of the conflict. Here, then, is proof that it does; and that due caution must still be the watchword.

Credit Where It's Due

DOMINION government returns released this week show that in the fiscal year ended last March 31 sales of liquor in Canada totalled $842,000,000. The anti-liquor organizations throughout the country can be counted on to make a great thing out of this, as they have every year in the past. It will be said in horror that Canada's 17,000,000 population spent more on liquor than on education, or public health, or whatever other service received a smaller allocation of public funds than $842,000,000.

Just for a change could this not be put in a fairer light. To begin with, Canada's drinkers—the vast majority of whom are decent, law-abiding, God-fearing people no more debauched than the abstainers—did not spend $842,000,000 on liquor last year. They spent only a little more than half that sum on liquor. The rest, $431,000,000 was paid out in taxes. Of course that is still a lot of liquor, but not $842,000,00 worth.

It would be no more than their due if instead of being held up as horrible examples of evil living Canadians who buy liquor in small or large quantities were credited with voluntarily contributing $431,000,000 towards the welfare of the country, and thereby saving the teetotalers from having to stump up a great deal more in taxes than they do at present. If no one drank it is obvious that the tax levy on the population as a whole would have had to be increased by more than $400,000,000, which means that those who hold up the drinkers to scorn and contempt would have had to dig into their pockets a bit deeper.

This is not written to defend alcoholism or even drinking in moderation; merely to give a nod of recognition to a section of the people paying more than the rest towards the costs of running the country.

Interpreting the News

An Independent People

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FOR the second time in two months, the world has been given a heartening reminder that some dictatorships are less impregnable than they seem.

In an age that required a blood-bath to remove Hitler and Mussolini and an atomic bomb to destroy the menace of Japanese aggression and in which the tenure of Communism appears invulnerable to anything short of a thermonuclear holocaust, there is welcome contrast in the quiet, undramatic fall of Turkey's Adnan Menderes.

The pattern bore a striking resemblance to the events that swept Syngman Rhee from power in South Korea a month earlier, beginning with a seemingly hopeless gesture of protest by a group of unarmed civilians.

Despite their well-earned reputation as indomitable warriors, the Turks have a tradition of relatively bloodless revolutions going back more than half a century.

Their first taste of democracy came when Gen. Enver Pasha led his Young Turks against the Ottoman empire in July, 1908, and established a reform administration that lasted until the outbreak of the First World War.

The second experiment was more gradual. When Kemal Ataturk created his republic out of the wreckage of the empire in 1923, he stamped out all traces of political opposition, on the plea that one-party rule was required to ensure the survival of the new state.

The point was proved in 1950 when Kemal's successor, Ismet Inonu, staged the first and only free election in Turkey's history, only to be ousted in favor of Menderes.

Like the military men who have seized power in a number of Asian and African states in recent years, Gen. Cemal Gursel has pledged himself to a caretaking role pending the result of free elections to choose his successor. He has also promised to maintain Turkey's adherence to the Western alliance.

Turkey's deep-rooted antipathy to Russia is based as much on racial as on political grounds. If her citizens have dealt gently with their own oppressor, they can be relied on to display their traditional ferocity towards any attempt at encroachment on the part of their northern neighbor.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

GEORGE MALLORY was the mountaineering nonpareil of his day and the man who when asked why he wanted to climb Mount Everest replied simply, "Because it is there."

Now the Communist Chinese expedition which claimed to have reached the Everest summit last week from the north—the route followed by Mallory in 1924—has announced that it found and buried the remains of a mountaineer garbed in clothes of British make.

Was it the body of Mallory or his young companion Irvine Irvine, whose disappearance has intrigued mountaineers for over three decades?

One is reminded of the story by Alexander Woolcott of the mountaineer who fell into a crevasse and whose body, brought down by glacier action, was recovered 40 years later, preserved in the pristine glory of his youth, his surviving companions meanwhile having grown old.

In the case of the relics found by the Chinese climbers this unknown mountain figure was reported to be shrunk and beyond recognition. It is a pity nevertheless some means of withholding burial was not possible or considered, so that British mountaineers might have had a chance sometime to establish identity. The grave will disappear in snow and the mystery remain unsolved.

The Chinese found the body at the 19,350-foot level of the Everest slopes. When last seen Mallory and Irvine were climbing slowly but steadily about 800 feet below the 29,002-foot summit of the mountain.

No one knows if either or both reached the top. When Hillary and Tensing conquered Everest in 1953 they found no trace of them. Theirs was necessarily a brief look round however and not a search. Mallory and Irvine could have attained the summit and fallen victim to misadventure on the way down. Any record they left to proclaim their success would long since have been obliterated by the fierce gales which whip around the Everest peak. No mention was made for instance by the Chinese mountaineers of the flag and cairn erected at the summit by Hillary and Tensing. Probably these were also blown away.

One is moved by fancy by this latest drama of Everest. One can visualize Mallory and Irvine reaching the top and, perhaps, realizing the hazards of the return journey, scribbling in a notebook the fact of their conquest—which would be the very first—of Mount Everest.

Supposing this to be the case and the notebook discovered in the pocket of the body found by the Chinese climbers, would the latter announce it or keep it quiet and bury the record with the unknown British mountaineer?

It is perhaps ungenerous to voice speculation of this nature, but the cold war makes skeptics of us all. Such a revelation would have robbed the Communist Chinese expedition of the prestige of being the first to climb Everest from the north side, and national prestige is now a dominant factor in international affairs. Possibly the world will never learn of the real fate of Mallory and Irvine, but the regrettable circumstance is that here possibly was a clue to the mystery and it has been summarily buried.

Gerald Waring

Reports from Ottawa

AS long as prospects appeared favorable for an East-West detente, the government here firmly postponed making any decision on re-equipping the nine RCAF home defence squadrons with modern jet interceptors. Now that tensions have increased as a result of the collapse of the summit talks in Paris, the question is much more urgent. Particularly so with the fate of the Bomarc anti-bomber missile in doubt.

This could be—and Canadians have every right to hope it will be—a major field of discussion in Friday's talks between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower. Is the administration going to bow to congressional pressure and junk the Bomarc? And what kind of a deal might Canada make for getting fast U.S. jets—say the F-106—for the RCAF?

Obviously the PM will have as much to say to and hear from the president on the post-Paris prospects. After Paris, the PM said it was "more imperative than ever" to continue the Geneva talks. "Efforts to make progress towards peace and security must not be abandoned," he said. The post-summit period should be one for "reassessment and re-examination... not for provocation or incitement."

Diefenbaker will certainly press these views on the president. This could be timely advice. There appears to be a strong emotional reaction in the U.S. to consign the Russians to hades and to get about more important business. For example, the election of a new president.

The Packstack

Vanished Respect

By GREGORY CLARK

SOME time ago, the Packstack reminded this generation that it was not so long since all the downtown stores and shops in city and town were equipped with very large blinds for all their show windows. And every Saturday night, when the long week's business came to an end, not at 6 o'clock or even at 10 o'clock, these blinds were reverently drawn, out of respect for the approaching Sabbath.

And "blind" the business section remained until Monday morning, not an article of merchandise displayed. Mrs. T. M. Minney of Exeter, a pretty little town in old south-western Ontario, writes to recall something I had forgotten.

"As a child," she says, "I had the job of drawing my father's store blinds for funeral processions—in those days they were processions. Most often they started from a home some distance out in the country, coming through the town on the way to the cemetery. I watched for the first of it to appear; then I would draw the blinds, and leave them down until the last horse and buggy of the fifty or more had passed. This act of respect was observed by all the storekeepers in town."

Merchandise, however, appears to have become more respectable in modern times. We don't feel like hiding it.

Old-Fashioned Victoria?

(From The Vancouver Sun)

DEAR, old-fashioned Victoria, drowsing in its gardens...

Of course, with several years of work they're pulling down all their overhead street wiring and putting it underground, but...

Dear, old-fashioned Victoria, dozing in a chair in the Union Club...

Of course, they're working now on a project for a landscaped shopping mall, not a makeshift, but a properly-planned one, a refreshing stretch of green in the city centre, but...

Dear, old-fashioned Victoria, strolling under its lamp-post flower baskets...

Of course, the shopping mall is to be tied in with an eight-deck parking garage, straddling a street, but...

Dear, old-fashioned Victoria, wheeling cars at 15 miles an hour...

Of course, the shopping mall and the parking garage are just part of what's being called the most complete integrated downtown improvement scheme of its type anywhere in the world, but...

Dear, old-fashioned Victoria...

Or is it dear, old-fashioned Vancouver?

Washington Angle

The Hero's Return

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE favorite script of the Eisenhower administration is the hero's return. Whether it is the president himself or Vice-President Nixon, we have seen the personal drama played out again and again of the hero who stands up to attacks and stones, insults, bad names, and then returns to the acclaim of a tumultuous welcome.

It is natural that the patriotism of Americans should respond to the fortitude of a leader who meets adversity. But how much the personal drama really means in relation to America's position in the world and to America's aims is something else again.

President Eisenhower's reception on his return from Paris and the efforts to enhance his role in the tragedy of the U-2 and the collapse of the summit have a familiar resemblance to the drama of Nixon's return from Latin America two years ago. Nixon had been stoned in Venezuela, spat upon in Uruguay and denounced in Peru. When he returned to a highly organized reception at the airport, it was the president who directed the chorus of "Hail the Conquering Hero." This was Nixon's assignment as the president returned from Paris.

Nixon said that his trip had demonstrated that "top priority" must be given to Latin America.

It is well the trip was taken at this time, he was quoted as saying, for it brought out into the open the problems we face before they could get worse.

There is little evidence that important steps have been taken to upgrade Latin America. Nothing like the recasting of American policy, which Nixon seemed to feel was essential, has occurred. When Alberto Lleras Camargo, president of Colombia, was here in April he made an eloquent plea for serious consideration of the economic and political pressures pushing in the direction of communism. As a true friend of the United States, he pointed out with all due tact that piecemeal, patchwork measures simply would not suffice.

The Nixon drama, while it gave a boost to the vice-president's stock in the polls and filled the headlines and the television screens, had no demonstrable effect on policy. The script was faithfully adhered to, with the vice-president ignoring the cautious advice of the expert and boldly invading centres of anti-American opposition. But it was an interior drama, enthralling for home consumption while meaning little beyond our own shores. If anything, a case has been made that the situation in Latin America has worsened since the vice-president's visit.

All this is relevant to the president's proposed visit to Japan and the massive demonstrations being staged against the Japanese-American defence treaty. He can go as planned, arriving in Tokyo on June 19, the date the treaty is due to become effective, and, defying the fanatical left-wing opposition, he could probably return to Washington for another reception, more triumphal arches and government workers dismissed to stand on the sidewalk to greet him.

Doubts are increasing, however, as to the wisdom of this course. The likelihood is for a postponement of the visit until after the elections in November. The president would have a valid reason to put off the trip in view of the complications growing out of the collapse of the summit and the stormy consequences in Congress of what has happened during the past month.

The administration apparently feels under the necessity to cast recent events in such a way as to absolve the president of any blame for what went wrong. The account currently being given of what led to the collapse in Paris varies radically with what American reporters were being told as the events occurred.

The major effort seems to be to convince the public that the U-2 made no difference whatsoever to the outcome. Secretary of State Herter's story is that Soviet policy had undergone a complete switch before May 1.

But this is not what we were told in Paris by briefers who presumably had authoritative knowledge. It was said quite plainly that if the U-2 had not occurred, the conference would have been held; as with many postwar conferences with Soviet Russia, it would have been harsh and even acrimonious, but it would in all likelihood have ended with a formula calling for another summit conference and the president would have made his visit to the Soviet Union.

This is, of course, an election year and the Democrats will try to exploit the U-2 and the collapse of the president's plans. But surely, even for the Eisenhower reputation, a little more candor would be helpful.

Letters to the Editor

Man's Friend

In recent issues of the Colonist I read with sorrow three letters written in favor of passing a bylaw in Saanich to leash dogs. Yes, I say sorrow because not one of the three writers can have known the friendship of a dog.

For a very long time the dog has been called man's best friend, but today we are inclined to forget the sacrifices made by our canine friends for us throughout the ages; and also that they are sensitive beings and subject to the feelings of sorrow and pain just as we humans are, and that they deserve human treatment at all times.

May I quote Sir Walter Scott: "The Almighty, who gave the dog to be the companion of our pleasures and our toils, hath invested him with a nature noble and incapable of deceit. He forgets neither friend nor foe; remembers with accuracy both benefit and injury. He hath a share of man's intelligence but no share of man's falsehood. You may bribe an assassin to slay a man, or a witness to take his life by false accusation, but you cannot make a dog tear his benefactor. He is the friend of man, save when man justly incurs his enmity."

ANNIE M. CRÜCKSHANK.

Insult to Dogs

I wonder how these people who advocate chaining up "man's faithful friend" would feel if they had their liberty taken from them. I'd like to see (and a short one at that) them for a while and see how they would react under similar circumstances. Oh yes, I hear the usual cry, "But we are humans, you cannot compare us with dogs." My answer is, what an insult to the dog! How many of us would be willing to die, if necessary, for those whom we love?

Their loyalty and devotion far surpasses that of the human. Let all of us animal lovers do our duty by pleading on behalf of those unable to speak for themselves.

ROSETTA KNIGHT.

1535 Hillside Avenue.

Unfair to Most

Having read several letters in the Colonist in reply to Mr. P. Wilkinson, secretary-manager of the SPCA re the leash bylaw in Saanich: Living on a street in Saanich where there are several dogs (even two to a house in some cases) who do not chase baby buggies and frighten and bite children, and eat out of garbage pails because they are hungry, or destroy gardens and turn vegetable patches into comfort stations—it is easier for me to agree with Mr. Wilkinson.

A leash law would be most unfair to the majority of dog owners, who do control their animals; the minority who do not should be dealt with by the proper authorities.

A dog tied and led all the time becomes bad tempered, much more to be feared by children than the neighbors dog who knocks off an ash can lid because it was not properly secured, or visits a garden patch unfenced.

A modified bylaw such as Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay have would be most suitable for this rural area, known as an "under control" bylaw. This would not help to develop responsibility in the young masters and mistresses toward their pets, and their neighbors.

(Mrs.) ELEANOR DESTRUDE.

R.R. 2, Royal Oak.

Unequal Increase

Unless my mathematics are very sadly in error, it would appear that in the matter of increase rates for the Greater Victoria water district now being applied for, the small man (the home-owner) is to be soaked in an increase of 60-odd per cent, whereas the greater consumer, with a large meter, is only to be raised something under 7 per cent. Why the glaring discrimination?

E. W. ABRAHAM.

Lost Face in West
But Gained in East

The following article is the second of four on the collapse of summit negotiations and the background reasons.

By ISAAC DEUTSCHER

Has it paid Khrushchev to torpedo the Summit conference? He may have strengthened his hands vis-a-vis his opponents at home and in China; but how do the international repercussions look from the Soviet viewpoint?

Khrushchev is surely aware that he has suffered a major propaganda defeat in Western Europe, where people have watched him at close quarters and could not stomach his behavior. Western Europe has finally seen him: as the wrecker of the conference, and even Communists (and a few people in Khrushchev's entourage) wondered why he assumed that role when he could have played his anti-American trump card much more subtly and advantageously.

Less Interested

Khrushchev may in fact be less interested in the reactions of Western Europe than in those of other countries and continents. Among the Afro-Asian nations the repercussions of Paris may be much more favorable to him. Even in India, which is not in a pro-Communist mood, there has been an inclination to blame Eisenhower rather than Khrushchev, perhaps because of Khrushchev's "neutrality" in Indo-Chinese conflict.

That inclination is probably much stronger in most Arab and African countries, in Indonesia, and elsewhere. There he may have won his propaganda battle; and so what he loses on the roundabouts he may gain on the swings.

In Long Run

Most paradoxically Moscow expects to gain in the United States, either immediately or in the long run. If American opinion comes to feel that the United States, having suffered an unparalleled humiliation, has "shrunk morally," then Khrushchev has scored an important long term success.

His propagandists are sure to make the most of Senator Kennedy's statement that the President should have apologized to Russia for the U-2 flights. They will point out that the Democrat leader, whose devotion to the American way of life is beyond dispute, has thus acknowledged the legitimacy of Khrushchev's demands in Paris and implicitly absolved him of the responsibility for the collapse of the Summit.

Moscow now watches the effect of the crisis on the American election. Will the American attitude towards Russia become the main issue in the electoral campaign? Will the Democrats use Eisenhower's mistakes as their political ammunition? Will the next president be more acceptable than Eisenhower has proved to be? Soviet policy in the next "six to eight months" and after will, to some extent, depend on the answers to these questions.

Some of the Soviet advocates of a tough policy hold that only such a policy can induce a more conciliatory American attitude towards the Soviet Union; and their toughness is purely tactical. Others take the view that a tough policy will pay, no matter what are the American repercussions, because the Soviet Union is playing from strength anyhow, and because the United States will not be able to catch up with it militarily in coming years.

Not So Sure

Khrushchev is not so sure about this. He has repeatedly expressed the opinion that the United States will sooner or later match the Soviet achievements in missiles and satellites. Arguing from this premise, he has warned his own comrades against complacency and arrogance; and since Paris he has been wary of pressing the tough policy any further.

Diefenbaker's Plea

More Consultation
Sought for NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—A call for still more consultation among NATO members was issued Wednesday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

He told the Commons that the collapse of the summit meeting in Paris has prompted among the 15 members of the alliance a greater realization of the need for unity and "a new feeling of cohesiveness."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he hopes the various NATO member countries will "emphasize still more the necessity of fuller consultation" in affairs concerning them. Only through full consultation would complete unity be possible.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said his discussions with President Eisenhower in Washington on Friday will cover a variety of matters, including NATO unity. There was no agenda for the meeting.

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Tavern owner Frank Carcolice and two customers appeared shaky as they handed $170 to a gunman — so the sympathetic bandit eased the tension. He ordered drinks for the house to calm everyone's nerves, pulled the telephone from the wall and fled.

VANCOUVER — UBC president Dr. Norman MacKenzie named Dr. Frederick Bryans as new head of the department of obstetrics and gynecology, and Dr. James Mather as assistant dean of the faculty.

HOLLYWOOD — Doctors say actor Gary Cooper, 58, will be in hospital "at least a couple of weeks" following major intestinal surgery.

TORONTO — Withdrawal of Canadian and U.S. forces from Europe, as suggested by Viscount Montgomery, would be a tragedy, says British Defence Minister Harold Watkinson.

SAN FRANCISCO — Sens. John Kennedy and Stuart Symington expressed confidence they could defeat Vice-President Nixon for the presidency. They are campaigning for the 51 votes of California delegates at the national convention in July.

TORONTO — Gerald Fox, 24, of Bracebridge, Ont., was charged with criminal negligence in the traffic death of Ottawa sports commentator Tom Foley last march.

France Pours Billions Into Algeria

This is the last of three articles by a columnist associate editor who was a member of a party of Canadian newspapermen which toured Algeria at the invitation of the French Government.

By ROY MURDOCK

Economically, what is Algeria worth to the Republic of France, of which it is as much a part as British Columbia is a part of Canada? In terms of dollars spent and returns received this rebellion-torn territory has been a heavy liability to France, and will remain so for possibly another 10 years—and maybe much longer, depending on the future of oil as a world fuel.

Today France feels that it is her responsibility to NATO and the Western world to remain in control of Algeria in order to save the territory oil from falling like a ripe plum into the lap of those who are shaking the tree. One would be naive to suppose that the element of self-interest is completely absent and that France's motives are exclusively altruistic. The Sahara's oil means a great deal to the republic's economy and should mean more as time goes by. Comparatively rich in most natural resources necessary for industrial development, France until five years ago lacked one of the most vital of all. The success of drilling in the barren and forbidding Sahara changed that.

First to Give Aid

For a long long time, especially since the end of the war, the republic has been pouring money by the billions into Algeria to promote development, to improve the historically poor lot of the Arabs by raising living standards, promoting health and spreading education. France is the first governing power ever to do this for Algeria.

Algeria has been, economically, a millstone around the republic's neck because it is intrinsically poor country trying to support a population (9,000,000 Moslems and 1,000,000 of European origin) far too big for its meagre resources.

Drift to the City

To complicate matters the industrialization of Algiers, which now has a population of more than 1,000,000, has caused that drift from country to city which is characteristic of many other lands, with Canada as a notable example. British Columbia with most of its population concentrated in the cities can understand the problem this creates, though perhaps not its magnitude in Algeria.

Conditions have reached such a critical point that measures have been prepared to halt further industrial development in Algiers in order to save what fertile land remains. Imagine what the reaction would be if B.C. government, for the preservation of food sources, were compelled to issue an edict banning further expansion of Vancouver.

No Great Catch

If these statements are accepted—and no reason could be found to doubt them—then it is obvious that Algeria is no great catch for France—stands in fact in the role of a poor relation.

Nevertheless France already has such huge investments in the country that unresisting withdrawal would be unthinkable. The capital value of Algiers alone, with its vast harbor and extensive modern installations, must be enormous.

Not so safe perhaps is France's own gamble on oil. There is always the risk that by the time the Sahara begins to pay dividends oil will have been superseded by newer fuels.

The conclusion which may be drawn from all this, therefore, is that France is completely genuine in her declaration that the stand made in Algeria is mainly in defence of territorial freedom and for the security of the West.

VISCOUNT MONTGOMERY

Monty Puts Foot in It

Invitation to Chou Embarrasses Mac

LONDON (UPI).—Prime Minister Macmillan's government is deeply embarrassed by Field Marshal Montgomery's invitation to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to visit Britain, authoritative sources said Wednesday.

But indications are that the Red leader may not take up the invitation, despite his reported acceptance.

Montgomery, who visited Peking last week, formally invited Chou to come to Britain as his personal guest, and said on his return that Chou accepted with pleasure.

Authoritative sources said right acceptance. Instead, he apparently left the door open, but had no intention of going.

Government leaders fear the invitation might be considered abroad as a deliberate "feeler" to revive flagging Sino-British diplomatic relations.

If Chou were to come, the government would find itself in a serious diplomatic quandary. Macmillan would have little choice but to receive Chou under the rules of diplomatic protocol and international courtesy, even if the visit were strictly private.

Last British Battleship Going Out of Service

PORTSMOUTH, England (Reuters).—Britain's last remaining battleship goes out of service next Tuesday—without ever having fired its guns in anger. The 44,500-ton Vanguard, biggest ship ever built by the Royal Navy, cost £11,000,000 but was completed too late to see action in the Second World War.

Gas Pipelines Plummet To New Lows

TORONTO (CP) - The stock market lost considerable ground.

Gas pipelines were especially weak with Trans-Canada and Alberta Gas Trunk both at new lows.

Base metals drew the only initiative from investors and went ahead a half point.

Among industrials, steels and papers combined to push prices lower. Steel Company of Canada, Atlas-Algonquin, National Steel and Dominion Foundries all lost.

Papers, after two weeks as industrial favorites suddenly lost their glamour.

Canadian Tire escaped the general trend to gain 1/4 at 181 1/4. Canadian Chemical was another strong feature.

Mines made a comeback, led by Noranda and Falconbridge. Giant Yellowknife and Algoma led 1/4 at 11.

Western oils were led lower by Home A and Pacific Petroleum. Calgary and Edmonton gained.

Steel Lead Drop

MONTREAL (CP) - Steels led a general decline in light trading.

Steel Co. of Canada at 74, Page-Herby at 23 1/2 and Atlas Steel at 20 1/2 led the group lower, all off 1/4. Algoma Steel lost 1/4 at 34 1/4.

New York Eases

NEW YORK (UPI) - The stock market floundered on a late sell-off that pared most prices from the day's high levels and left the list just about where it was the day before.

Electronics, drugs and cameras featured the more spectacular run-ups, while metals and oils were mixed, autos and steels firm and chemicals easier.

Industrial stocks closed with a small loss on average, their first in four sessions, while rails ended lower for the fifth successive day. Utilities were firm.

Autos, dull most of the session, picked up late in the day as company reports on May auto output reached the market. Ford, which turned in the best May since 1955, tacked on a small fraction.

The other auto shares, GM, American and Chrysler, all improved on similar reports. Steels also met some late spurring, with National and Armco up around 2, and U.S. Steel ahead by more than a point.

Minneapolis-Honeywell, which developed a new type gyroscope, vaulted 7 points to 178 1/2. Cessna eased despite its purchase of a 49 per cent interest in a leading French aircraft firm.

Vick Chemical spurred 7 points in the drugs where Warner-Lambert, a recent favorite, dropped around a half.

In the cameras, Polaroid added 4, American Photocopy more than 4 and Bausch & Lomb more than 2.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters) - Despite April's good industrial output figures a certain amount of hesitancy hung over London stock markets.

Gilt-edged securities suffered further widespread declines under increased selling.

Interest in gold shares remained low and prices were easier where changed.

Apartheid with a Vengeance

'We Are Fenced In' Says Bitter Chief

By Dr. Frank S. Morley
(Fifth of a series)

Half an hour's drive from Pietersburg lives Romokopa, Chief of the Sothos. Absurdly, on the reserve, the government is reconstructing the circular native houses with their cone-like, straw roofs on a European street system! About the hill on which the chief's house is located, however, the native huts are still clustered and un-Westernized.

The chief was dressed in European clothes, surrounded by his council, dressed more shabbily and looking dejected. But he was a chief! Nor did the presence of a government official intimidate him. He spoke vigorously and freely.

CRUX OF SITUATION

How did things come about with his boyhood? The chief answered wistfully—and I felt this was the crux of the South African situation—"It used to be that White and Black were friendly and mixed together in fellowship. Now we are separate." Regarding Pass Books he did not disguise his angry resentment. Were they not necessary to prevent overcrowding and slum city conditions? No, they were not.

"I am fenced in. I can't move about," he said bitterly. "We haven't enough land. We need eight or nine morgen (about 20 acres) per man." At present the Bantu has just six morgen (15 acres) and that only for bone fide farmers.

SIGN OF FRIENDSHIP

We rose to leave. As etiquette demanded, we gave his treasurer some gifts for the chief and his wife, and not directly. The chief glowed like a child, and gave the sign of friendship, clapping his hands three times. We parted in obvious friendliness, but as we passed the huts the women glowered at us as though they would like to cut our throats.

While up in the Transvaal my wife and I drove through the marvellous Kruger Park. We saw many of the huge, long-necked giraffe, zebra in abundance, herds of the gentle impala, rare nyala, the dangerous, skittish buffalo, waterbuck, a herd of 60 elephants crossing a river, crowds of baboons, and hippopotami. "If a native wanted to go through the park, how would he go about it?" I asked an official. "No way," he replied. "He can't go through." "Why?" "Apartheid."

FAMOUS LAWYER

Down in Durban we were invited to dinner by the famous lawyer and business man, Mr. Chowdhury. His wife is even more famous as a medical doctor, novelist, and artist. Mr. Chowdhury was, until refused a passport to leave South Africa, a delegate for India to the United Nations.

More charming people I have never met. They drove us back to the hotel and I thoughtlessly invited them in. As they refused the pain in their eyes made me immediately aware of the fact that they could not come in! Only "whites" are allowed, although curiously Chinese and Japanese are excepted.

COLORED MAN

In Johannesburg my car waited outside a building while I took in a dictaphone for repair. In my hurry I began to enter an elevator in which the sole occupant was a colored man with a bundle. A firm grip on my arm pulled me back. "You can't get on there," the man said. Only then I saw the signs, "European" and "Non-European." I had to wait for the other elevator.

There are even separate taxis for white and black. A colored man does not ride in a taxi operated by a white man, nor does a white man ride in a taxi operated by a black man.

"MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED..."

Meet Joan Wilson. Voted the girl most likely to succeed in her class—that's what it says in the school annual. Judging by what she's doing here, her classmates have made a good choice.

You see, the year she started school she also started a savings account at the special school wicket at the B of M. Joan has graduated from the school wicket, but almost every Friday afternoon you'll find her here doing her weekly banking.

With a sense of thrift and responsibility learned at "My Bank's" school wicket, Joan was off to a good start as the girl most likely to succeed. Why not start your children off on the road to success by opening an account for them at the B of M this Friday?

Whites Flee

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Hundreds of white settlers streamed through Uganda yesterday, driven by fear of widespread racial violence when that sprawling African territory gains independence June 30.

Big Question Ignored

Platitudes, Generalities Fill Verwoerd's Speech

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—The Johannesburg English-language morning paper, Rand Daily Mail, has called Prime Minister Verwoerd's widely anticipated Union Day speech "a disappointment," and says it was largely filled with platitudes and generalities.

The newspaper claims the prime minister did not answer the big questions at issue "in a critical period in the country's history."

For instance, while pleading with English-speaking whites to support his referendum to make South Africa a republic, Verwoerd "said nothing about whether the republic would be sought within the Commonwealth or outside it." The Daily Mail adds: "It has to be recorded with regret that Dr. Verwoerd used Union Day 1960, not for giving the people hope of any break in his ideological onslaught, but merely as an opportunity of furthering the National Party's program. In fact he used the occasion to open the 1960 republican campaign."

Some opposition party leaders have also started hitting back at Verwoerd politically and personally now that he has apparently fully recovered from the attempt on his life April 9.

Many had no passports or travel documents and only a minimum of personal possessions. This was all right for Belgian nationals, because their government has guaranteed their care.

STUCK HERE

"The trouble is, many stateless persons have been living in the Congo, too," a British immigration official said. "When they reach Uganda they are likely to be stuck here permanently because no other country will have them."

Many Europeans still in the Congo, which lies west of Uganda, were laying in stocks of motor fuel for a speedy departure. If and when it becomes necessary.

The Uganda government also feared a flood of black refugees from the Congo once Belgian control and troops are removed.

In Northern Rhodesia, troops were reported to have moved up to the Congo frontier to seal it in case violence does develop.

Garden Notes

Receet for Washin

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Sometimes, after I have completed one of these garden columns, I lie awake at night wondering if I have explained things clearly enough. It is so terribly easy to take things for granted—to think that some elementary gardening operation is so well known and understood that it needn't be mentioned, and thereby to leave out the one essential piece of information needed by some reader new to gardening.

Explaining procedures clearly and simply isn't the easiest thing in the world, not for me, anyhow, and I sweat blood at times over this type-writer trying to find phrases which will be understood by the rank beginner. I suspect, too, that some of my more experienced readers are frequently bored silly as I labor some elementary point.

To keep me straight on this business of explaining things clearly, I have a clipping pinned on the wall in front of my desk which, for my money, contains the clearest set of instructions I have ever seen. It has nothing whatever to do with gardening, but was written down many years ago by an old Kentucky woman to explain to her granddaughter precisely how to wash the family clothes. Here it is, in the original spelling:

RECEET FOR WASHIN CLOSE

1. Bild fire in back yard to heat kettle of rain water.
2. Set tubs so smoke won't blow in eyes if wind is pert.
3. Shave one hole cake lye soap in bilin water.
4. Sort things. Make three piles. 1 pile white, 1 pile collord, 1 pile work briches and rags.
5. Stur flour in cold water to smooth then thin down with bilin water.
6. Rub dirty spots on board. Scrub hard. Then bile. Rub collord but don't bile—just rench and starch.
7. Take white things out of kettle with broom stick handle then rench, bilew, and starch.
8. Spred tee towels on grass.
9. Hang old rags on fence.
10. Pore rench water in flower bed.
11. Scrub porch with hot soapy water.
12. Turn tubs upside down.
13. Go put on clean dress. Smooth hair with side combs. Brew cup of tee. Set and rest and rock a spell and count blessings.

If I ever succeed in explaining, say, how to plant a Magnolia as clearly as this Kentucky grandmother's "receet," I'll feel very proud of myself indeed.

I have just been looking over the show catalogue and prize list for the Victoria Horticultural Society's annual summer show, to be held in Crystal Garden June 17 and 18, and judging by the classes arranged, it will be the best ever.

It doesn't seem to be generally realized that anyone can compete in this show—you don't have to be a member of the society in order to enter your super-duper African violet or a vase of sweet peas. It costs only a dime to enter an exhibit—juniors under 16 free—and while the prize money won't buy you a Cadillac, showing is a lot of fun and you can learn plenty as to what constitutes quality in a plant.

The big emphasis this year is on floral arrangements, and there are no less than 19 classes in this section, including one for men only and several for junior arrangers. Roses, too, will be very much in the spotlight at this show.

If you'd like to take a crack at exhibiting, I suggest you get a copy of the prize list and entry form from the secretary, George A. Wiggan, 1840 Ferndale Road.

TV Looks Over Its Shoulder

"The Sacco-Vanzetti Story," a two-part drama around the sensational trial of the two radicals in 1920, will start to unfold on NBC-TV on Friday. It was written by Reginald Rose who wrote "Twelve Angry Men," another courtroom drama that went on to fame and fortune in the movies, and will be directed by Sidney Lumet who also directed "Twelve Angry Men."

Sacco and Vanzetti were executed for the murder of a payroll guard after a seven-year fight to free them. "You ask," said Mr. Rose, "if I think this show bears any resemblance to the case of Cary Chessman. The whole issue in the Chessman case was the abolition of capital punishment and this has nothing to do with the Sacco-Vanzetti case. The issue in their case was whether they were guilty of murder or guilty because they were radicals, socialists, anarchists."

Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested and tried during a period of hysteria against radicals unlike anything the U.S. has seen since. Bombs were being sent through the mail and everyone with foreign accent or foreign ways was under suspicion as a revolutionary.

"I didn't know very much about the case when I began the research," Rose admits, "I didn't even know who had been murdered. Now I think Sacco and Vanzetti were not guilty. But I hope I am not biased."

"There was no attempt to make editorial comment. The viewer will decide for himself. It's a terribly strong script and I say some pretty strong things. Part One shows the facts of the case, ending with the trial. Part Two deals with why they were executed."

"They were intelligent, lovely, gentle people. I agreed to do the show because what it has to say in terms of history is bolted down into one quote from Albert Einstein we've used in the play:

"Everything should be done to keep alive the tragic affair of Sacco and Vanzetti in the conscience of mankind. They remind us of the fact that even the most perfectly planned democratic institutions are no better than the people whose instruments they are."

Rose said he thought the show might be useful as a lesson from the past for the present. "It is not until years later that reason begins to prevail. Sacco and Vanzetti were killed in 1927. Now we can look back on it with some detachment. It is valuable to be able to look back in history and say: here we went wrong and here we were right."

Como Show Face-Lifted

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Back in 1937 Lin Yutang wrote a famous best-seller, "The Importance of Living." Now, 23 years later, he has compiled a companion volume to it, called "The Importance of Understanding" (World). It's a big anthology of his favorite passages from the whole range of Chinese literature, all translated by himself.

In his preface Lin Yutang tells us that this is a book for "casual dipping," for "relaxation of the spirit," for "nourishment of the soul." It is all of that. It is, for my money, the perfect bedside book, the ideal companion for whenever you're in the mood for gentle inspiration or wry, calm detachment.

To give you an idea of what the book is like, I'll quote some appetizing tidbits:

Hobbies Are Vital

"It is absolutely necessary for flowers to have butterflies, for hills to have springs, for rocks to be accompanied by moss, for water to have water-cress in it, for tall trees to have creepers and for a man to have hobbies."

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you. But better not expect others to do unto you what you would do unto them."

"To teach rich men to enjoy life would mean to ask them to give away money, which is difficult, to say the least."

"Those who despise money will eventually sponge on their friends."

"You can deceive your superiors, but not your inferiors."

"A rainy day in spring is suitable for reading; a rainy day in summer for playing chess; a rainy day in autumn for going over things in the trunks or in the attic; and that in winter for a good drink."

Try for Friends

"Better try to build up a company of friends when you have money than try to win disciples by your lofty teachings."

"The man who has does not understand the man who hasn't."

"A man should not marry after 30 if he is not already married, and should not enter the government service if he is not already in the service. At 50, he should not start to raise a family and, at 60, he should not travel abroad. This is because there is a time for everything; done out of season and time, there may be more disadvantages than advantages."

"One wakes up at dawn completely refreshed, washes his face and puts on the headress, has his breakfast, chews willow branches (for brightening his teeth), and attends to various things. Before he knows it he asks it is noon, and is told it is long past noon. As the morning goes, so goes the afternoon, and as one day passes, so pass the 36,000 days of one's life. If one is going to be upset by this thought, how can one ever enjoy life?"

Cuba to Keep CNS Ships

OTTAWA (UPI) — Transport Minister Hees said Wednesday the Canadian government has no intention of repossessing from Cuba the strike-bound, eight-vessel Canadian National (West Indies) Steamship fleet it sold in August, 1958. Cuba has met all payments to date. The vessels were sold for $2,800,000 over a five-year period.

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The Perry Como show will be completely overhauled. It hasn't seemed as good since leaving the Saturday night time slot . . . Ditto for the Steve Allen show which has no time slot at all for the 1960-61 season. Let's face it: Saturday and Sunday are the perfect evenings for Como and Allen.

Judy Garland is the logical choice to take over for Ethel Merman in "Gypsy," when and if . . . and Dean Martin is wooing Ava Gardner to be his lady in "Ada Dallas"—about a man who is groomed for governor of his state. He meets up with a prostitute and she becomes "governor."

Jack Paar wants to do "Place to Place," a facsimile of "Person to Person," but the new show will be Sunday night and Paar refuses to surrender that evening of freedom. How about signing Ed Murrow? He's back from his year's sabbatical, and no one was ever better on "Person to Person."

Danny Thomas was talked into signing for another year of "The Danny Thomas Show." Danny doesn't need the money; his previous segments were sold for daytime TV for the nice round figure of $7,000,000.

Quoting Andy Griffith, on the struggle between equity actors and the producers: "The producers have always been hard to get along with. What we have demanded is only fair." . . . So I called Andy's producer, David Merrick, of "Destiny Springs Again" and many other shows on Broadway, and five to do for the fall. "Out of all this will perhaps come a healthier theatre. It's pretty sick now," philosophized Merrick.

Thirteen people are bumped off in "Brotherhood of Evil," which was at one time set for James Mason, Louis Jordan, Red Buttons and Dina Merrill. The original script had Miss Merrill meeting her end in a garbage-disposal unit on the east side of New York. I hope that Dina, because she's so social, has a better fate with Burt Lancaster in "Matter of Conviction."

It will be a long time before we see Tony Perkins in Hollywood. With Broadway's "Greenwillow" closed, unfortunately, Tony will remain in New York until the premiere of his "Psycho" movie for Alfred Hitchcock, after which he takes off for his Massachusetts cottage for the rest of the summer. Tony will leave for Paris in September to do "Time on Her Hands" with Ingrid Bergman—this was originally "Aimee Vous Brahm"—and then back to Broadway in the fall for another play.

Shirley MacLaine turns in a delicious performance in her latest movie, "The Apartment," for ace director-writer Billy Wilder. Also Jack Lemmon gives the performance of his career in this film. And Fred MacMurray, minus a lot of weight, looks 20 years younger. The picture starts slowly, but builds beautifully.

Take another look at Marco Polo in those spice ads. Look hard and you'll see Tony Randall. I wouldn't have guessed if he hadn't revealed the secret.

Ziva Rodann, discovered by Conrad Hilton in Brazil, has been dating the millionaire hotelkeeper in Hollywood. "A charming man, and a wonderful host," coos the flashing Ziva.

Sergeant Bisley Bound

Last in the city directory and phone book but Victoria's best Army rifle marksman is Sergeant Ed Zwolak of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry. Zwolak has been named as a member of the 13-member Canadian Army team to fire at the National Rifle Matches to be held July 2-20 at Bisley Camp, Surrey, England. He is the only Army man from the Greater Victoria area on the team.

Victoria's only other official Bisley shooter is Corp. Bob Walker of the RCMP who will line up with Canada's 18-man squad that will officially represent the country. Zwolak, born at Meadow Lake, Sask., and who now makes his home in Oak Bay, has been stationed in Victoria since December of 1957. He had previously been stationed in Germany for two years. Sgt. Zwolak will leave Victoria early this month and sail for England with the Army team.

Triple Attack Scuttles City

Tributes to Lester Patrick Pour In from Near and Far

LESTER PATRICK, LEFT, SON'S LYNN, CENTRE, AND MUZZ

North America's hockey men paused in their off-season pursuits last night, in tribute to the late Lester Patrick who died at 76 in Victoria's Jubilee Hospital Wednesday afternoon.

Soon after the dinner hour in Victoria, the Canadian Press wire service teletypes were chattering with tributes from the length and breadth of Canada and the United States.

Telephone calls to and from hockey players and executives on the Pacific Coast confirmed the obvious—the game loved and will miss the old Silver Fox of hockey.

Al Leader:

Western Hockey League president Al Leader, speaking from his Seattle home, said:

"Lester Patrick was the finest man I have ever known in hockey. Whenever I needed help or advice I went to Lester. Hockey could never have repaid him for all the things he did for the game."

Hal Laycoe:

Hal Laycoe, general manager and coach of Victoria Cougars the past season and now coach of the new Portland entry in the Western League, said from Victoria:

"I knew Mr. Patrick for many years and will remember him as a good friend. He enjoyed much success in every phase of professional hockey. It would be difficult for anyone to contribute more to the game than he did."

In 1945 Laycoe was signed by Lester to his first professional contract with the New York Rangers. Already playing with the Rangers then were Lynn and Muzz Patrick.

Ed Dorohoy:

Eddie Dorohoy, colorful star of the Western League with Vancouver Canucks and who played at Victoria for seven seasons, said from his home here:

"Mr. Patrick was the finest man I have ever played for. It was a pleasure working under him. He gave me my first coaching job in the 1952-53 season with Victoria and I'll never forget the guidance and experience he gave me."

"Lester had time for everyone. When I came out of hospital after breaking my leg last winter, he was the first person to phone. Mr. Patrick had just come out of the hospital himself at that time."

Clarence Campbell:

MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Wednesday night, the death of Lester Patrick "removes one of the few remaining links with the early days of the game."

He expressed regret that because of the imminence of the annual NHL convention, he will be unable to attend the funeral of the legendary Silver Fox. The convention opens here Monday.

Th NHL will be officially represented at the funeral by Walter Brown, president of the Boston Bruins and chairman of the league's board of governors.

In a statement Wednesday night, Mr. Campbell said:

"I don't think it is possible to describe fully the many contributions which he made to the game throughout his lifetime as player, coach, manager, team-owner, league governor and, more recently, chairman of the selection committee of the Hockey Hall of Fame."

"He was identified with most of the major developments in the style of play, the organization and expansion of the game down to the time of his retirement a few years ago."

"One of hockey's real immortals is gone and I know that I have lost a very good personal friend."

Tommy Gorman:

OTTAWA (CP)—T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, harness racing promoter and former hockey manager, paid tribute to Lester Patrick Wednesday night as "always a wonderful man in every respect."

Gorman managed the old New York Americans while Lester was managing the New York Rangers.

"We were keen opponents and bitter rivals, but always great friends," he said. Patrick, he said, was "always a great opponent—a grand person in every way."

Red Dutton:

CALGARY (CP)—Red Dutton, ex-president of the National Hockey League and longtime associate of the late Lester Patrick, said Wednesday Patrick was a "maker of men."

Dutton said the Silver Fox of hockey "did more for young men than most men do."

"He was a great man, a great competitor, and a great gentleman."

Cyclone Taylor:

VANCOUVER (CP)—Old-time hockey great Fred (Cyclone) Taylor said Wednesday he, "along with the rest of Canada's athletic world," is paying tribute to Lester Patrick.

"I have known Lester intimately since 1908 when he was with Brandon and I played for Portage La Prairie in the Manitoba Senior Amateur League," said Taylor, "and we were once together on the same team—the old Renfrew Brigadiers."

"Since then Lester has gone to the top in every phase of the game, and I am deeply sorry to hear of his death. I am quite sure we will never really see his like again," Taylor said from his Vancouver home.

Alex Shibicky:

Alex Shibicky, who broke in under Patrick and went on to become an NHL star with New York Rangers, said:

"Hockey has lost one of its greatest friends. Everyone gained something from him."

Newsy Lalonde:

MONTREAL (CP)—Old-time hockey great Newsy Lalonde, a member of the game's Hall of Fame, Wednesday night paid high tribute to Lester Patrick, and recalled moments in their illustrious careers when their paths crossed.

"I am quite saddened by the news," he said. "I have lost a good friend and we all know what wonderful things he has done for hockey."

If Patrick had not been around on one spring night in Victoria in 1924, my coaching career might have reached a more glorious height than was, alas, the case," Newsy recalled.

Saskatoon Shieks, under playing coach Lalonde, and Victoria, with Patrick in the lineup, were meeting in the decisive game for the Western League title.

"Lester appeared out of nowhere with the puck, tore down right wing, got through three or four of our players and rifled a long shot past (George) Hainsworth. That was that. It was near the end of the third period and Victoria won the game 10."

"Whenever I look back on my career I always think of Lester, because he represented to me all the finest things about the game. He was a tremendous skater and stickhandler, he always played hard—a real never-say-die type—and he was a fine gentleman on and off the ice."

Billy Hewitt:

TORONTO (CP)—W. A. (Billy) Hewitt, registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for more than 50 years, Wednesday night said Lester Patrick did more for hockey than any other individual.

"He was the greatest man in hockey," said Hewitt, "the dean of them all."

Cy Denneny:

OTTAWA (CP)—Cy Denneny, a member of hockey's hall of fame and veteran of 12 years in the National Hockey League in the 1920s and early 1930s, said Wednesday night Lester Patrick was "a man I always looked up to."

Victoria Whips Vancouver

By JIM TANG

Fred Wooster stayed on his feet and his teammates used their last night to carry a warning that Victoria can not yet be counted out of the running of the Inter-City Lacrosse League race.

In a heartening display of improvement at a time when another setback might well have been disastrous, the Victorians looked like the club first 11 minutes, the Victoria club got into trouble when Ron Jay and Ed Kowalyk drew simultaneous penalties at 13:40, remained under pressure in the second quarter as Jim McNeill was fenced at 3:52 and Norm Kowalyk followed him off at 5:15.

But it was there the game was won, with Wooster contributing his bit offensively for what might have been the most important goal of the game.

Noting Bob McKee breaking down floor after he had made a stop, Wooster caught the fleet forward with a long pass and McKee made no mistake with the go-ahead goal at 1:03.

They were at the end of last season in their 11-6 romp over Vancouver before 1,662 Memorial Arena fans.

It was their third win of the season, all over Vancouver, and with only three points between Victoria and New Westminster, the win set up next week's three-game series against the Canadian champions.

Wooster, who appears to have the regular goaling job as his to hold, looked like the top candidate for rookie of the year honors last night.

UNERRING EYE

Resisting temptations to go down, he played alertly, steadily and, often, brilliantly in turning aside 30 of 36 shots and saving trouble several times with an unerring eye for loose balls.

With Wooster holding the fort so well, the Victorians finally made full use of their biggest asset—speed. Showing new hustle and alertness, they snapped up loose balls and snapped back into position when they lost possession for what was without doubt their best two-way performance so far this season.

Most noticeable was the improvement on defence. Getting a bit the worst of it from referees Sid Greenwood and Gogie Stewart—eight of 12 penalties—the Victoria club stopped Vancouver's potent odd-man play cold.

SWINGS, PENDULUM

In the nine minutes they were forced to play short-handed, the Islanders came out on top by scoring two goals while conceding but one, and it was their alertness in the last part of the first quarter and the early part of the second which swung the pendulum their way.

McNeill's first goal, a fine lone effort from a face-off, settled his club down after Vancouver had grabbed a 2-0 lead.

Matching McNeill's three goals and one assist was hard-working Stu Smith, who has come up with six goals in the last two games.

There's always someone, it seems, to pop up and earning a "Yankee-killer" and the latest of the breed is Hector Harold "Skinny" Brown, who has been a journeyman pitcher just good enough to stick in the major leagues for 10 seasons.

The 35-year-old Baltimore right-hander yesterday came in the fourth inning, reached base against Brown after that one slip. He set down the last 16 men in order for his first ever one-hitter.

Meanwhile, a rookie shortstop now unexpectedly leading the American League in hitting, came through with the hit Brown needed. Ron Hansen, who prepped last season with Vancouver Mounties, hit his fourth homer in the fifth inning after a walk and an error by pitcher Duke Maas had put two runners on.

Sam "Toothpick" Jones, back at his home park where he is unbeatable, and Bob Friend, having reclaimed his old role as leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates, accounted for the main pitching heroes in the National League.

Jones, starting, finishing and winning for the fifth time in San Francisco's spanking new Candlestick Park, got the decision over Chicago rookie Dick Ellsworth only because of unexpected ability with a bat.

Ellsworth had a two-hitter and two out in the ninth inning and the game seemed headed for extra innings when slow-footed Bob Schmidt seemed in no trouble, getting two quick strikes on the weak-hitting Jones. But eyes popped as Jones swung and slammed the ball off the centre-field fence at the 397-foot mark for a game-winning double.

Jones has now pitched a one-hitter, a two-hitter, two three-hitters and yesterday's five-hitter in a 5-0 showing for the home fans. But he is 1-4 away from home for 6-4 for the season.

Friend kept the Pirates in front by a game and a half with the first complete game for the Pittsburgh staff in the last 12. He gave up three hits, walked one and whiffed six in a 5-0 win over Cincinnati Reds.

Silver Fox Dies . . .

next year. He stayed at McGill University only one year—"I failed, that's all," he explained—and then joined his father's wood and coal company.

BIG-BONED
A tall, big-boned player with a mop of hair that was later to turn silver and earn him his nickname, he broke into major hockey in 1903 as a defenceman with Brandon, Man., and in that year played against the Silver Seven in a Stanley Cup series won by Ottawa.

Patrick started on defence from that time until he was 39 and he played on or managed 15 teams in Stanley Cup finals. At 44, when he was coach of New York Rangers, he made a one-game comeback in the unfamiliar position of goaltender.

EYE INJURY

When Ranger goalie Lorne Chabot suffered an eye injury, Patrick went into the nets himself and beat the Montreal Maroons, allowing only one goal in one of hockey's legendary feats.

In 1909, Patrick moved to Nelson, B.C., with his family, but returned to the east with Frank to play for $3,000 a season with Renfrew Millionaires.

The Patrick brothers later returned to the Pacific Coast, persuaded their father to back them in introduction of the pro game, and built Canada's first artificial ice plants in Vancouver and Victoria. They launched the Pacific Coast League in 1911 and it remained in constant operation as a major league until 1926, when the Patricks sold their teams to the NHL.

UNDER WIRE
Lester got under the wire with a Stanley Cup for Victoria in 1924-25.

Lester, moved with the tide, going to New York to manage Rangers, where he welded such stars as Frank Boucher, Bill and Bun Cook, Ching Johnson and Taffy Abel into one of the finest teams of all time.

He retired from Rangers in 1946 and the following year received a rare tribute when, before one of the largest gatherings of hockey notables ever assembled in the Garden he received the scroll of membership in hockey's Hall of Fame at Kingston, Ont., to which he had been elected the previous February.

REVIVED COUGARS
Lester retired to his home in Victoria, and had been there but a short time when he re-activated the famed Victoria Cougars this time in the Western Hockey League. But by 1956 he was really ready to retire.

From that time on, he followed hockey through the newspaper columns, seldom attending a game and making infrequent appearances at hockey gatherings. When the National League games began reaching here on television, he became a regular Saturday night viewer.

GOOD HEALTH
Always a man who enjoyed the good health of an athlete, he was taken to hospital last fall with pneumonia, but two weeks after being admitted was sitting up in bed and on the road to recovery.

He entered hospital again recently suffering from recurring cancer, and died yesterday afternoon.

Until he was admitted to hospital for the last time he took long walks in the sunshine and meticulously worked in his garden.

GOOD TO ME
Once asked if he would be a hockey player again, he replied: "I'd go through it all again, yes, I would. Hockey has been very good to me and very kind."

"But then maybe I'd like to be a criminal lawyer. That's

St. Paddy Wins Epsom Derby

EPSOM, England (CP) — An English-bred colt named St. Paddy repelled a strong team of Irish challengers Wednesday, bringing Sir Victor Sassoon his fourth Derby victory in eight years.

Ridden by Lester Piggott, the only one among the 17 jockeys in the race with a previous Derby win to his credit, the smooth-striding chestnut three-year-old made it look easy as he strode away from two of the Irish invaders to win by three lengths.

Alcaeus and Kythnos, the next two to finish, both were trained by P. J. (Paddy) Prendergast. Their stablemate, Lustrous Hope, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell, made a brief run at the leaders in the stretch but wound up in seventh place.

HORSE DIES

Tragedy marred the race when Angers, the French-bred favorite, broke a fetlock five furlongs from home in the 1½-mile race and had to be destroyed. He never was a factor in the race.

A second Canadian entry, Marengo, owned by Montreal-born Maj. Herbert Holt, was a close-up third half a mile from the finish but faded badly and was one of the last across the line.

The race was worth £33,052, biggest prize in Derby history, to Sassoon, whose last winner was the Irish-bred Hard Ridden two years ago. The peacock blue and old gold silks of the international banker also were carried to victory by Crepello in 1957 and Pinza in 1953.

'No Fear' of Pulp Competition

Still Far from Meeting Home Demand, Say Russians

British Columbia pulp and paper mills need fear no Russian competition in world markets in the foreseeable future.

The head of the Soviet delegation visiting pulp and paper mills in Canada said in an interview here last night "it would be premature for us to think about the possibility of going into world markets."

Georgi Orlov said that "from a technical point of view" the Soviet industry was lagging 15 to 20 years behind its Canadian counterpart. He briefly sketched a gigantic seven-year expansion under way in Russia and predicted even this would not be sufficient to meet domestic requirements.

(When Canadian pulp and paper officials visited Russia last October they discovered production there amounted to 35 pounds of paper products per capita, compared with Canadian and U.S. figures based on population respectively 315 pounds and 350 pounds.)

Mr. Orlov said the industry will pay special attention to manufacture of kraft liner for packaging during the expansion program. He quoted production figures for 1960 of 17,000 tons and predicted by 1965 the figure would exceed the target of 2,100,000 tons "and probably reach 2,500,000 tons."

NOT SUFFICIENT

"We don't think this will be sufficient," he said. "Bear in mind our population is 210,000,000. The growth of our domestic requirements will be much more rapid than the growth of production."

"We don't even think about entering world markets because our production now amounts to only 2,100,000 metric tons of paper and by 1965 it will be 4,200,000 metric tons. This is still too little to satisfy our internal requirements."

WOOD CONTAINERS

Present shortage of paper products for packaging means that 25,000,000 cubic meters of "high quality" board is used to make wooden containers. Some 100,000 workers are employed in making the containers.

RETURN VISIT

Mr. Orlov visited B.C. four years ago as Soviet minister of forest industries. When the industrial ministries were abandoned in 1957 he became vice-president of the state planning committee of the Russian Federation, largest of the 15 republics within the Soviet Union and the area which contains 96 per cent of the logging and pulp industries in Russia.

The delegation visited Alberni, Elk Falls and Crofton mills before coming to Victoria. They will return to Vancouver today.

Teamsters Get Heave-Ho From Canadian Labor

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress Wednesday night confirmed expulsion of the 40,000-member Teamsters Union from its ranks.

The 21-member CLC executive council announced after a day-long meeting the unanimous approval of a resolution expelling the Teamsters for raiding a rival union. The action was in line with a decision taken at the CLC convention last month in Montreal.

The Teamsters then were given 30 days to mend their ways and agree to abide by the CLC constitution which forbids raiding rival CLC affiliates. That deadline expired last Saturday.

Oppenheimer Joins Plea

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Harry Oppenheimer, South Africa's top financier, Wednesday joined the ranks of businessmen urging the Nationalist government of Prime Minister Verwoerd to change its harsh segregation policy.

Indians Get Nets

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will supply Indian fishermen on Lake Winnipeg with trap nets before the start of the approaching commercial season on the lake, Citizenship Minister Fairclough said Wednesday.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Monotony is the common objectionable feature of Canada's post-war housing, a committee of architects said Wednesday in a report that recommended ways to improve residential areas.

The report of the committee was released as the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada started its four-day annual assembly.

Typical outlying areas of cities and some whole municipalities consist of nothing but bungalows and people who went to these developments and builders "have misgivings about the character of their housing, seen in bulk."

"The intensity of this dismay is evident in statements made to us on behalf of housewives all across Canada, who have lived for some years in this kind of post-war environment."

"Monotonous, boring, dull, rubber-stamp similarity; are some of the terms used to describe developments where the same or very nearly identical house is repeated over and over."

TORONTO (CP)—A report by three architectural experts was commended by the head of the National House Builders Association.

Margaret Likes Antigua

ANTIGUA, West Indies (Reuters)—Princess Margaret and her husband Antony Armstrong-Jones have extended their stay in this Caribbean island, it was learned Wednesday.

The honeymooning couple arrived Tuesday for a one-day visit but stayed on after swimming and sunbathing at St. Ann's Point, and watching the sunset from the island's Shirley Heights.

The couple later joined island administrator I. G. Turbott for a barbecue supper where steel band music was played.

City Jaycees

Al Wilson, 2221 Kinross Avenue, was last night elected president of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce for the 1960-61 year.

Mr. Wilson defeated Eric Charman of Deep Cove for the position. Other officers elected:

AL WILSON

Announcement of the decision to grant the licences, made yesterday afternoon by the B.C. Liquor Control Board, was followed a few hours later by word that Shelbourne Plaza will be the scene of a $400,000 expansion starting in about four weeks.

TWO LOCATIONS

Col. Donald McGugan, LCB chairman, said yesterday it was the intention of the liquor board to grant applications for licences at the two locations by Capital Holdings Ltd.

No details of the new outlets were immediately available, but the chairman said they would be a "credit to the community." He said a full report would be prepared and the new liquor stores were expected to be in operation before the end of summer.

EXPANSION PLANS

Meanwhile, L. T. Hurst, president of Capital Holdings Ltd., when called in Vancouver gave details of the expansion program at Shelbourne Plaza which will include a bank and several new stores in addition to the liquor outlet.

Mr. Hurst said plans for the extension were nearing completion and work would begin on the site on Shelbourne at Cedar Hill Cross Road before the end of the month. He said the extension will increase the present size by 30 per cent.

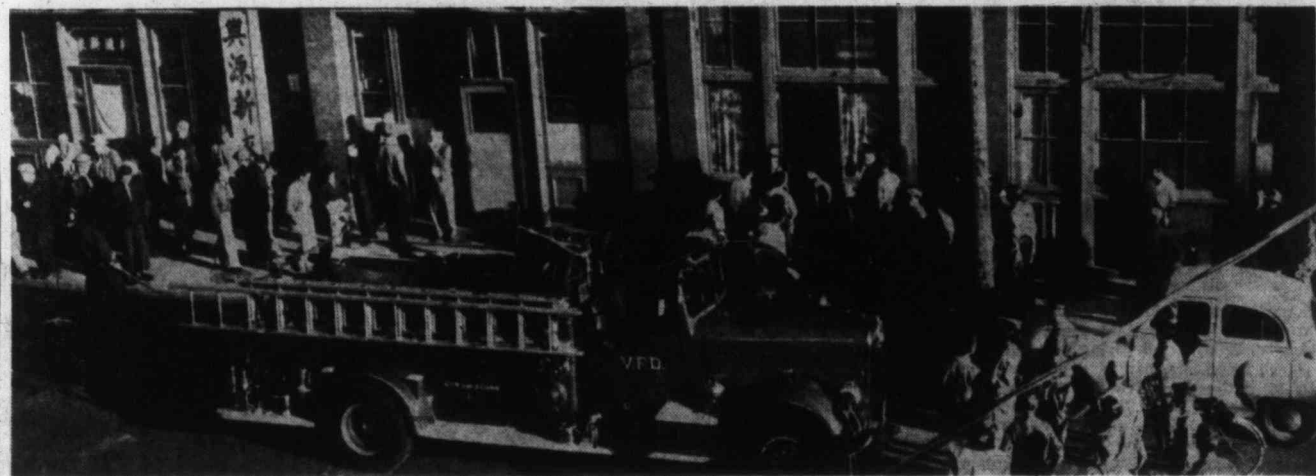

The addition will be constructed on land owned by the developers, and extend the plaza to Pear Street.

FOR PRESENT

At Colwood for the present there will only be a liquor store added, said Mr. Hurst. He indicated, however, that within "a very short while" an expansion program will be announced there as well.

The twin shopping centres were opened early this year. Mr. Hurst said the reception given them by the public of Greater Victoria was "greater than anticipated."

The developer said granting of licences for liquor outlets at the two shopping centres was welcomed "because we like to have all services in the neighborhood represented at our plazas."

Quick action by city firemen prevented what could have been a disastrous fire in a heavily populated area of Chinatown. While a crowd gathered on the street, fire trucks raced up to 531 Fisgard where dense smoke filled the home of Arthur Lee. Kindling left to dry in a stove oven had caught fire.

No B.C. Boycott
For Africa Wine

If some British Columbians want a boycott against South African wines they can "stop buying it themselves," Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday.

The B.C. Federation of Labor asked for a ban on the wines because of racial turmoil in South Africa.

Mr. Bonner said the B.C. government had no intention of setting "foreign policy" by cutting imports of the wines.

He said boycotts "are not an appropriate means of communication" within the Commonwealth.

Elizabeth Fisher

Already Crowded,
New School Open

More than 400 people turned out last night for official opening ceremonies for the new Elizabeth Fisher Junior High School — a school already filled to overflowing.

Guest speaker was T. W. Graham, assistant superintendent of administration for the department of education, who spoke in the Belmont school auditorium. The crowd then shifted to the new school across the street for opening ceremonies.

Mrs. A. G. Dunne, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Fisher, cut the ribbon to open the school, named after the first teacher in the area. Rev. Richard Stephenson, a great-grandson of Mrs. Fisher, performed the dedication.

Built at 3067 Jacklin Road, the eight-room school has been in use since Easter and is filled to overflowing.

City Ponders
Cafe Rules

City council health committee will look into regulatory licensing of food-handling establishments as a means of tightening enforcement of sanitation regulations.

The committee yesterday delegated Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson, its chairman, to study the situation, after Ald. Elmer McEwen suggested regulations in some instances were being circumvented.

When Mrs. Wilson reports, it will consider advisability of issuing licences which could be revoked or suspended.

Won't Equal Last Year

Last night's Solarium Junior League canvass for the Queen Alexandra Solarium may not reach last year's figure of $20,000, officials reported.

With well over half the returns counted late last night, the total was only $10,000. Final figure will be available tonight.

There was no objective set for this year's canvass.

Sunset ceremony will be conducted tonight on the grounds of the legislative buildings by the Canadian Scottish Cadets.

Greens, Boulevards

City Farms Out
Grass-CuttingHoping
To Cut
Costs

Parks committee of city council will call for tenders on cutting and watering of greens and boulevards to see if the work could be done more cheaply than by the parks department.

This decision yesterday, and the decision of public works committee Monday to call for tenders on maintenance and operation of street-lighting, are the outcome of suggestions at budget-time that contractors might be able to supply some services at a saving.

SPECIFICATIONS

Parks administrator W. H. Warren submitted to parks committee a set of specifications which would have entailed a contractor taking almost complete care of parks and boulevards, but the committee settled on seeking bids only for watering, at a frequency to be recommended by Mr. Warren, and cutting, with the provision that grass must not be allowed to grow longer than three inches.

The committee rejected a suggestion from Mr. Warren that the Maritime Museum at Esquimalt be given the cramped bilge-keel of HMS Amphion. The keel was placed in Beacon Hill Park after the ship hit a reef in 1889.

AT MUSEUM

More people would see it at the museum, Mr. Warren suggested.

"But it's ours, and it's in our park," said chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney.

The committee also decided to ask for a statement on the number and description of games and on charges for rides or amusements before giving a circus permission to use Victoria West Park July 11 and 12.

Glowing Object Seen

A cigar-shaped, glowing object was seen by two Victoria residents about 9 p.m. last night, but officials of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory say they didn't see a thing.

Tom Nixon, 3529 Alderly Road, reported what "looked like a comet, travelling in a north-northwest direction and moving sideways at the same time."

"I watched it for four minutes. It had about a 30-foot tail and was a golden color. It could have been a rocket."

Another man who did not wish to be identified described the object as "long and yellowish gold."

"I watched it for about two minutes and it disappeared into a cloud," he said.

Family Court Starts

Judge Byers
To Preside

The Consolidated Family and Juvenile Court of Greater Victoria was established yesterday by provincial order-in-council.

Its operations will start immediately and will take in Victoria City, Oak Bay, Saanich, View Royal and Colwood.

JUDGE BYERS

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said last night that Judge J. A. Byers, who is now judge of the juvenile court in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich, will take on the duties of juvenile and family court judge for the consolidated area.

Appointed deputy judge is Victoria lawyer Harold Alder.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas will continue as judge of the juvenile courts in Esquimalt and Central Saanich.

Mr. Bonner said a probation officer will be made available shortly.

FEW DETAILS

He said there are a few administrative details to be ironed out, but otherwise the court is ready for operation immediately.

The provincial government will pay about 10 per cent of the costs of the court in addition to supplying a probation officer. Other costs will be apportioned on a cost-sharing basis according to population in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Another Big Effort Today
In Search for Two Men

Royal Canadian Air Force search and rescue forces scheduled another "maximum effort" search today for two Victoria businessmen missing in a Seabee amphibian since last Sunday.

Less than ideal weather conditions hampered searchers to some extent yesterday, and up to 5 a.m. today weather forecasters predicted more low cloud and rain showers over the search area.

FIVE RCAF PLANES

A total of five RCAF planes, one U.S. Coast Guard plane, and two Victoria Flying Services aircraft scoured the Vancouver Island search area yesterday to no avail.

An RCAF spokesman said that when search planes landed at dark last night a total of 3,074 square miles had been covered in an effort to learn the fate of the co-owners of C & C Taxi Ltd., pilot Cecil Rhodes and passenger Cecil Rawlings.

Rhodes and Rawlings left here Sunday for what was planned as a one-day fishing trip at Nitinat Lake, 70 miles west of Victoria. They are known to have taken off from the lake about 1 p.m. the same day.

Searchers estimate that when the plane left Nitinat Lake it carried enough fuel to take it about 200 miles. But poor weather which settled over the west coast area at about the same time brought hopes to a halt.

Injured Pair
Leave Hospital

Clarence and Florence Nelson, 1111 Skeena Place, injured in a three-car collision at Trans-Canada Highway and Skeena May 26, were yesterday discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital.

men might have made an emergency landing on a lake too small to take-off from.

Most lakes in the search area had been scanned from the air by last night and a foot search was undertaken in the vicinity of one lake following reports that nearby fishermen had heard an explosion there on Sunday.

William Sylvester, president of Victoria Flying Services, who flew for five hours over the search area yesterday said last night, "I still haven't given up hope by any means."

But he added, "I don't like the looks of it."

TWO AIRCRAFT

He said his company will send two aircraft on the search again today.

Both men are reported to be accomplished woodsmen and easily able to survive any ordeal in the woods if they survived an emergency landing.

Meringue Glaze Springtime Treat

Here's a dessert that looks elegant, tastes delicious and is very simple to prepare. Fill a crisp meringue shell with scoops of ice cream in all different colors and flavors... and the more colors you use, the prettier your dessert will be! To top off this luscious confection, serve it with Peach Melba sauce—just put it in a sauce boat and let your guests help themselves.

One package all-purpose Meringue Mix, 2 packages frozen raspberries, 1 cup currant jelly, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, 1 teaspoon cold water, 1 package frozen sliced peaches, 4 half-pints ice cream in varied flavors and colors. Prepare meringue, following package directions for crisp, lightly browned shells. Line a baking sheet with foil. Using an 8-inch layer cake pan as a pattern, outline a circle in centre of baking sheet. Keeping within the outline, shape a ring of meringue on the foil. Bake as directed. Cool. Meanwhile heat raspberries in a saucepan until thawed, then mash. Add jelly and bring to a boil. Blend cornstarch and water. Add to jelly mixture and cook, stirring, until thickened and clear. Add peaches. Heat gently until thawed. Remove from heat and chill. Fill centre with meringue shell with small scoops of assorted ice cream. Serve Melba Sauce separately. Makes 8 servings.

Pineapple Has Many Uses

Pineapple, fresh, canned or frozen, is available as juice, crushed chunks, slices, tidbits, mixed cocktail or pie mix. It has as many or more uses—beverages, punches, fruit cocktails, salads, desserts, breads, cookies, cakes, pies, pickles, jams, etc.

LANI LAIKI
Lani Laiki means "Heavenly Rice" in Hawaiian, and you'll agree that leftover rice has a special glamour when fixed this delicious way.

Two cups cold cooked rice, 1 cup tidbits or crushed pineapple, drained, 1/4 cup pitted dates, chopped, 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped.

Mix all ingredients together, and chill before serving. (You may cut up 12 to 16 marshmallows and add also, if you wish.) Chill thoroughly. Serve decorated with a bit of guava jelly or a maraschino, or fresh frozen strawberries or raspberries.

PINEAPPLE-CHEESE ICEBOX PIE

Serves six.
Filling: 1 tablespoon plain gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 3 egg yolks, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 cup soft cottage cheese, 3 egg whites, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup sugar.

Add gelatin to cold water and set aside. In cold double boiler beat 3 egg yolks slightly, add crushed pineapple (syrup and all), lemon peel, lemon juice and 1/4 cup sugar; cook over hot water, stirring until thick; add gelatin, stir until melted, remove from heat. Put cottage cheese through wire strainer, add to hot mixture; cool until beginning to thicken. Beat 3 egg whites with salt; when stiff, gradually beat in 1/4 cup sugar, and fold into pineapple-cheese mixture. Heap in chilled crust, sprinkle with reserved crumbs, and chill 3 hours or longer.

Crumb Crust: 4 cups corn flakes, crushed (makes 1 cup), 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons melted margarine or butter.

Mix crushed flakes, sugar and melted margarine. Press into 9-inch pie pan, reserving 3 tablespoons crumbs for topping. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator.

SPARERIBS HAWAIIAN

Two and one-half to 3 pounds meaty pork spareribs (or lamb breast), salt and pepper, 1/4 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup thinly-sliced celery, 1/4 cup green pepper, cut 1/2" squares, 2 tablespoons margarine or butter or pork fat, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 1/2 cups (1 No. 2 can) pineapple chunks or tidbits, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon soy sauce.

Arrange spareribs (or lamb breast), meaty side up, in shallow pan; salt and pepper lightly.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By HELEN R. HEWSON

Letters sent to this column and parent interviews are most fruitful sources of information about patterns and trends in modern family living.

Many letters come from grandmothers who are caring for their grandchildren when mother goes off to work.

NEW SETTING

In this age of two-generation family units there are still many households where grandma gets the lunch, settles the squabbles, comforts and cares for the children. These are old tricks for grandma, but in a new setting.

In her son's or daughter's house she may have much more responsibility but little authority. Grandma may be loved and respected but the ultimate authority for family life and decisions is not hers.

Today's grandmother is not the frail, shawled creature of old. She is more likely to be vigorous, alert, with definite opinions and ideas of her own.

GRANDMA ALSO

Edith Neisser is a grandmother herself who has helped many other grandmothers fit smoothly and happily into the family picture.

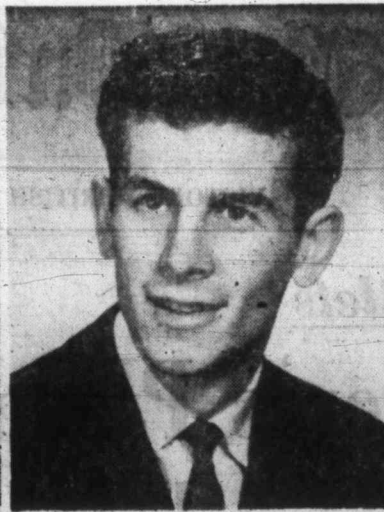

She is a family counselor and author and editor of publications for parents—and grandparents. There is no hint of lavender and old lace about her pamphlet How To Be A Good Mother-in-law And Grandmother.

It may surprise some to learn that a little grandmotherly spoiling can be good for a child. It is the kind of spoiling that is important.

To deny a child the right to practise independence and self-reliance is not good. To love and enjoy him with warmth and spontaneity contributes much to his sense of well-being and his emotional development.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Westley Firth of Whitehorse, Y.T., announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Catherine Elizabeth, to Mr. Gary James Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Small, 1600 Hollywood Crescent.

Mrs. R. E. Wright gave the speech, "Three Musketeers," that won her the club contest and was presented with the

A skit, "Dirty Work in Red Trenches" by Mrs. J. Craig. Vote of thanks was given by Mrs. R. P. Macmillan. Square, written by Charles O'Donnell, was presented by Mrs. O'Donnell, Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Scott, Misses Rita Rodgers and Gale Smith.

King's Daughters Increase Work with Children, Indians

Mrs. G. E. Belshaw of New Westminster, president of the King's Daughters and Sons, B.C. branch, called on members to double the membership to mark the 75th anniversary of the branch.

Membership now stands at 325, an increase of five from the previous year.

RAISE $28,083

Although membership was small, Mrs. Belshaw said the sum of $28,083 was raised and the provincial projects in aid of needy Indians and assistance to retarded children was steadily increased.

The report on Indian work was given by Mrs. R. F. Mac-

Kenzie who stated large consignments of clothes, materials, and other articles had been sent to needy Indians.

HOSPITAL SURPLUS

Mrs. C. D. Evans reported that the King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan had operated with a surplus again last year.

A Provisional Accreditation had been received in the spring of 1959 and with the building of the new hospital, Mrs. Evans said it was expected a Full Accreditation would be forthcoming.

Many new improvements were made in the hospital and several important purchases of modern equipment were made.

NEW SITE

Plans for the new hospital to be built on a new site are now being drawn up, Mrs. Evans reported.

Mrs. E. L. Yeo reporting for Vancouver districts showed the main project as work at Restholm, the home maintained for elderly guests. Volunteers worked with the Red Cross every week and individuals worked for pensioners, orphans and other needy cases.

PAINT CAMP

Miss Jessie Gordon, vice-president of the branch, showed the five circles in Victoria had contributed to the Red Cross, VON, Cerebral Palsy Clinic, B.C. Protestant Orphanage, Veterans' Hospital Cancer Clinic and other groups.

The sum of $100 has been set aside for use in the new home for retarded children.

Supplies had been sent to Gorge Road Hospital where the group maintains one room. A cottage at Sunshine Camp, maintained by the King's Daughters, had the interior completely renovated last year and the exterior painted this year.

Mrs. E. R. Craig reported New Westminster circles had given assistance to homes and schools for retarded children. Mrs. M. J. McLean reported.

The convention sessions will continue today in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church hall.

Hair Wardrobes New

PARIS (Reuters)—Paris hair styles for 1960 are like the proverbial bride who wears "something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue."

Trends incorporate classic upswEEP styling adapted in new abstract ways. False hair and fake chignons have been borrowed to lend a long-haired look to short locks. The proverb is complete with blue and dark ash rinses replacing honey blonde shades as the most popular hair coloring.

"Hair wardrobes" are the newest idea, ranging from wigs to numberless small artificial pieces. Pony tails can be draped and coiled at will. Braided chignons, caged under cobweb sheer nets, come ready shaped by Paris hairdressers. Gay little fringed bangs or side wings, set on invisible hairpins, permit endless new effects and variations.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I'm a librarian, 28, pleasant-looking, no beauty, but a good conversationalist. I've had a sisterly relationship with numerous gentlemen, (darn it!) and I'm getting panicky.

Three weeks ago I met a terribly interesting assistant professor. He's attentive, has taken me out five times in the past two weeks, and telephones almost every night "just to talk."

He's the conservative type and has made quite a point of being just a "poor struggling teacher."

I haven't told this to a soul, Ann, but my father left me a legacy of $18,000 in 1957. On my uncle's advice I invested it in good stocks and it's now worth about $30,000.

Should I tell this fellow about the money? I want very much to insure this romance against fizzling out. Please use that smart head of yours and give me some solid advice. —EAGER.

Dear Eager: Could you be happily married to a man if you suspected he married you for money? Well—there's your answer.

If you don't want the loot to be a consideration, then forget about it until he expresses a permanent interest in you.

Three weeks isn't very long, Toots, so take it easy. If the professor catches a premature whiff of orange blossoms in the air he may be scared off. Continue to give him the pleasure of chasing you—until you catch him.

Two Lovely White Shirts

Dear Ann: I bought my boy friend two lovely white shirts for his birthday. I went to the trouble of learning his collar and sleeve size from his roommate. Then I had his initials put on the pocket.

When my boy friend opened the box he said "What did you do that for? You've ruined the shirts!" I was dumfounded and didn't know what he meant. He explained only cornballs have initials put on their shirts. Then he got a razor blade and carefully cut the initials off.

Scared to Be Alone

Dear Ann: I'm 24 and have two small children.

I'm scared to death to be in the house alone at night. Even when my husband leaves for an hour or two I'm in a panic until he returns. This fear is being transmitted to my young children. My little boy asked last night, "Why are you so afraid, Mommy?" I told him there was nothing to be afraid of and he replied, "I'm afraid, too."

What can I do to overcome this foolish fear?—SCARED STIFF.

Dear Scared: Have additional locks put on both doors. Check the windows and make sure all the locks work. The psychological effects will be good.

Then turn on the lights when you're alone in the house. Keep the home number of your next-door neighbor handy. If someone should hammer the lock off and break in (most unlikely) you'd have prompt assistance.

If this doesn't work, you need professional help. The fear is rooted elsewhere.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet "Reclaiming and Feeding—And How Far to Go," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HARDY AMIES' FASHIONS

Famed Designer Thinks Canadians a Bit Slow

By ELIZABETH DINGMAN

LONDON—It is just before 10 on a rainy morning. A liveried doorman has shepherded me from taxi to the front door of 14 Saville Row under an enormous black umbrella.

The business day is beginning at Hardy Amies.

In comes Amies swiftly through the heavy front door, hatless, short beige raincoat, slim trousers.

Now I climb up two long flights of concrete stairs at the rear of the house to a temporary office where Amies works while the house is redecorated by Tom Parr, associate with David Hicks before his marriage to Lord Mountbatten's daughter.

"I believe myself that there is no period influence today. We're undoubtedly creating a new idea. For example in New York, you couldn't walk into the Guggenheim Museum in fussy frilly clothes. That is femininity all too ripe.

"There is more of womanliness than fuss-and-frills in contemporary clothes. The figure with emphasis on hips and bosom is the line.

TOILETANCE

"Modern clothes display tolerance—with the exception of the formal ball dresses. They display great ease, of fit, without in their best form being sloppy. We balance between ease and untidiness. Actually the sort of clothes we make today—plain, fitted—demand a great discipline of the body underneath.

What suits Canadian women? "The best sellers in London, I think. All fashion tends to get more international.

"We sell the same clothes in Canada as we do in England. The only difference is climatic.

I believe your philosophy of dressing—of shape—is based on European standards—and this includes dress.

"As a Londoner, I think Canadian women are a bit slower at taking up new ideas. I'm not being critical. I myself am slow to change. The speed at which one seizes on a new idea depends on where one lives. London, a big capital, takes up new ideas swiftly. Birmingham might therefore be behind Montreal and Toronto."

FOOD FILLERS

Mix the dry ingredients for cakes, muffins, and cookies and put them into jars. Label each jar as to its content and as to what remaining liquid ingredients are needed. You'll find it a pleasure when in a hurry some morning to be able to reach into the cupboard and find muffins almost all ready for baking.

Wedding at Sidney For Miss Granewall

St. Paul's United Church, Sidney, was the scene of the wedding of Anne Marie Granewall and Herbert George Morrey, at a double ring ceremony last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Nels Granewall of Royal Oak are parents of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. George Morrey, Sidney, are parents of the groom.

Rev. C. H. Whitmore officiated in the church decorated with spring flowers.

The bride wore a portrait gown of nylon sheer over net and taffeta. Chantilly lace and iridescent sequins trimmed the neckline. The full skirt was highlighted with a low-set bow. An heirloom fingertip veil was held by a headpiece of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and lily of the valley.

Matron of honor, Mrs. E. Mookleiner, Victoria, wore a pink ballerina-length gown of lace over taffeta. Her accessories were white and she carried a bouquet of pink and white feathered carnations. Miss Patricia Michael, Victoria, was bridesmaid in a sea green ballerina-length gown of lace-over-taffeta. Both wore bandeaux of white feathered carnations.

Victor Foster, Uchuellet, was best man and ushers were Nels

Granewall Jr. and Charles Granewall. Capt. George Hillier, Uchuellet, proposed a toast to the bride's happiness at a reception in Sidney Hotel. A fitted suit of Caribbean blue with white accessories was chosen by the new Mrs. Morrey for a honeymoon motoring trip to Banff. On their return the newlyweds will make their new home in Sidney.

THE ECONOMICS OF ADVERTISING

$2¼ MILLION DOCUMENTED SALES FOR AN ADVERTISING EXPENDITURE OF $4300

In all successful advertising there must be a message of public interest....a suggested advantage to the reader that will promote a favorable reaction.

Daily newspapers provide an interested audience for advertisers...at the lowest advertising cost of any medium.

An interested audience plus low-cost coverage makes daily newspaper advertising the cheapest and most effective form of advertising.

Recently a member of the CAAA* placed an advertisement for a large financial institution in CDNPA member newspapers at a cost of $4300.

This specific advertisement contained a coupon and invited interested newspaper readers to fill in such coupon and send an accompanying cheque subscribing to the securities being advertised.

The advertisement in question produced coupons with cheques attached, with an approximate value of $2¼ million.

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

THE LUMBER

Western red cedar lumber is noted for its exceptional durability, lightweight and beautiful color, ranging from almost pure white of the narrow sapwood to reddish brown heartwood. It is very easily worked, is free from pitch, takes and holds stains, paints and enamels excellently, and is superior for gluing. Because of these qualities, Western red cedar is especially adaptable for use as bevel siding for quality homes.

DURABILITY

Western red cedar is one of the most durable species known. Its heartwood is highly resistant to decay, and can be counted on for long and worthy service where conditions favoring decay prevail.

WEATHERING

Left exposed without paint or other protective finishes, Western red cedar weathers to an intriguing grey color having little or no sheen. It is one of the most stable species of lumber, having very little tendency to cup and pull loose from fastenings when exposed to the weather.

INSULATING

Qualities Western red cedar has the highest insulating value of all commonly used soft woods—another point in its favor as siding, and of particular importance when used as roof decking.

One of Five Felt Sick

NEW YORK (UPI) — One out of five Americans at one time or another thought he was heading for a nervous breakdown; one out of four had a problem for which he thought he could use professional help, and one out of seven got professional help, according to a mental health survey released yesterday.

Lawyer Surrenders

Adoption Racket Solved in U.S.?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An attorney accused by New York authorities of heading a west coast baby adoption "black market" surrendered to police here Wednesday.

Ralph Benson, 36, of Los Angeles, appeared at police headquarters when he learned a Queens County, N.Y., warrant had been issued for his arrest.

LONG PROBE

The action climaxed a lengthy New York investigation into purported irregular adoption practices.

A similar investigation has been ordered in California, although authorities here said they were not sure whether there was any law violation. The New York probe led to charges that Benson provided children for adoption without a licence.

NO COMMENT

Assistant Queens County district attorney Tom Cullen and George Chankin, New York City detective, began questioning Benson shortly after his arrest.

Irish Sweep

Three in Canada Win Big Money

TORONTO (CP) — Three Canadians, two from Quebec and one from Ontario, held Irish sweepstakes tickets on St. Paddy, winner of the Epsom Derby Wednesday. Each ticket is worth $138,000.

Canadians had four tickets on second-place Alcous and four on third-place Kythnos. Second place was worth $55,200 to each ticketholder and third place was worth $27,600.

The first-place winners were A. P. Robert of Verdun, Que.; a resident of Ville St. Michel, Que. using the name of Puss, and Frank Card at Odessa, Ont. Card had agreed previously that he and a friend, Weldon Corey of Odessa, would split the money if either won.

Mr. Card is married and has a five-year-old daughter. Michael Magnone, 19-year-old baker's assistant from Surrey, B.C. who got a ticket from a friend in payment for an old $2 loan, won $55,200.

LARGE FEES

He said there was evidence Benson in "several cases" received substantial fees for his part in acquiring babies.

According to the New York officer, the inquiry disclosed the alleged adoption ring arranged to have a pregnant woman go from New York to Los Angeles to give birth to her baby.

OTHER CHARGE

And an Eastern couple seeking to adopt a child came home for the infant, paying $3,500 to arrange the adoption, said Chankin. Benson also is charged here with conspiring with an osteopath and a chiropractor to falsify insurance claims.

Elvis' Cousin

Second cousin to Elvis is relationship claimed by Alonzo (Pat) Presley, 66, blacksmith at Dawson Creek, B.C. He says Presley family started in Quebec, moved to Ireland. Most came to western Canada, but Elvis' grandfather went to the U.S.

Vancouver IWA Opens Plush $240,000 Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — The IWA has moved into a new office here which is at least the equal of anything owned by the huge companies the union bargains with.

The $240,000 building, headquarters for operations of the powerful union in the four western provinces, was opened Tuesday.

It features indirect lighting, wood-paneled walls, a 400-seat auditorium and a solid-walnut conference table 32 feet long.

By DICK WILLIAMS

Of all the stories repeated about Al Jolson, this is my favorite:

It happened when Jolson and Larry Parks got together for the first time to work on Larry's impersonation of him for his film biography.

Al stressed the point that Larry should be calm and relaxed while he was singing — to make it look real easy. "Watch," said Jolson, "and I'll show you."

He went to work on "April Showers" with all the famous Jolson gestures — arms waving, feet shifting and tapping, head bobbing like a prize fighter. The song finished, Jolson collapsed into a chair, wiped his brow, looked at Larry and gasped:

"See, I didn't move a muscle!"

Star Palms Number

TORONTO (CP) — A young airport customs clerk got the telephone number of movie actress Joan Crawford Tuesday night without asking for it.

Warren Greaves, 18, saw Miss Crawford as he entered a limousine at suburban Malton airport and asked her to autograph the back of his hand. She obliged.

Warren then asked: "Do you think there is any chance of my getting into the movies?" "Have you ever tried?" Miss Crawford replied.

When the youth said no, the film star told him: "Turn your hand over, honey, here's my phone number."

Every Show May Close

Strike Hits Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) — The curtain failed to rise Wednesday night on the hit show "The Tenth Man" as Actors' Equity launched an all-out strike that could result in the closing of every show on Broadway within 24 hours.

About 6,000 theatrical employees were affected by a producers' threat to close all 22 Broadway shows, plus seven on the road. Box office losses alone would top $1,000,000 a week.

First move in Equity's hit-and-run strike against the League of New York Theatres came after talks broke off in a bitter wrangle over pension demands.

Equity long ago announced its plans to strike one theatre at a time for one night at a time. The producers said a strike against one house would be a strike against all and that every theatre on Broadway would be closed today if a strike against "The Tenth Man" developed.

About an hour before curtain time, the 17 members of "The Tenth Man" cast — instead of reporting to Booth Theatre — went to an Equity meeting.

Broadway's latest theatre strike, one of the noisiest, most star-studded labor battles of all time, was in 1919, when Equity first won recognition.

Now grown to 11,000, Equity has 1,000 of its members currently working on Broadway. The crisis also affected 175 actors in touring Broadway shows.

Pensions have been the chief stumbling block from the outset. Equity sought a producers' contribution equivalent to two to five per cent of an actor's salary during a four-year period.

Later, Equity scaled this down to one to four per cent during five years.

Producers contended a pension would have to be extended to other theatre unions and the cost could force a 25-per-cent increase in ticket prices.

With present ticket prices as high as $9.90, the producers argued they were in danger of pricing themselves out of business.

Sweepstakes Crackdown Misses City

Neither Victoria city police nor Royal Canadian Mounted Police in this division has received information to date of a Western Canadian sweepstakes ticket distribution believed to implicate more than 100 persons.

Police in Edmonton turned up names, addresses and other information during a recent raid, in connection with both the Irish and the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' sweepstakes.

This information, they said, would be passed on to the RCMP and to police departments of other western cities.

'Flying Beetle'

Jet Takes Off Like Copter

LONDON (UPI)—A tailless jet plane that takes off like a helicopter and then flies as a normal aircraft flew successfully yesterday.

The aircraft, the SC1 and nicknamed the "Flying Beetle," was described in the press as a pioneer development.

The plane went through its test at Bedford. With a shattering roar, it lifted vertically from a square metal launching platform.

In four seconds it rose to about 40 feet, then surged forward, accelerating to 160 miles an hour. Finally it stopped dead, then settled back, helicopter fashion.

Test pilot Tom Brooke-Smith said of the flight: "Nothing to it."

Death Checks Kibitzer

NEW YORK (AP)—The quiet of a chess game in a Greenwich Village literary haunt was broken Wednesday by an argument, a fight and the death of a kibitzer.

The scene was Chumley's, a restaurant rendezvous for authors, editors, newspapermen, poets and chess players for 32 years.

LOOKING ON

Bartender Ray Guillano, 63, who has averaged 10 games a night, year after year, was playing chess with Loren Disney, 54, a freelance reporter. Clinton Curtis, 43, a freelance book editor, was looking on.

Into the place strode Michael George, 34, a chess-playing merchant seaman.

OLD ROAST

"I can whip any man in the house," police quoted him as saying, in reference to chess, "I'll play for any amount—$10, $100, $200."

Disney declined to wager, but played him a game and beat him. Curtis, looking on, got into an argument with George over the seaman's strategy.

Police said Curtis swung at George and George, apparently forgetting he was holding a glass of beer, swung back. The glass shattered and cut Curtis's jugular vein. He was dead when an ambulance arrived.

George was held on a homicide charge.

Lester Patrick Legend in His Time

From Stick Boy to Hall of Fame

Won Fame
As Player, Manager

The silver fox of hockey is dead.

Lester Patrick, whose climb from stick boy to the hockey Hall of Fame made him a legend in his own time, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday. He was 76 and had been in failing health for several months.

Four years ago he retired from active participation in hockey, a sport with which he was directly associated for more than 50 years and upon which he has left the Patrick influence indelibly imprinted.

PLAYING STARS

The most conspicuously successful of a family notable on the Canadian hockey scene, Patrick was a playing star from his early youth until he was 39 and became one of the most resourceful managers the game has ever known.

He inaugurated the game's first major farm system; devised, with his brother Frank, the profitable playoff system still used and dozens of rule improvements, and helped introduce professional hockey to British Columbia.

SONS STARRING

He climaxed his career with the vice-presidency of Madison Square Garden, a tribute to his vital part in the success of hockey in New York, where his two sons, Murray and Lynn, starred as players.

Today, Murray (Muzz) Patrick is vice-president and general manager of the Rangers and Lynn holds the same post with Boston Bruins, keeping the Patrick name active in the National Hockey League. They have been here since their father became ill again last week.

Lester was born Dec. 30, 1883 in Drummondville, Que., the first of nine sons of Joseph Patrick, an Irishman and stout Methodist storekeeper and lumberman.

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Against this background and with a tolerance developed as he grew up among French-Canadians, Patrick later earned a reputation as a man of integrity and unlimited moral courage. For many years when he was a manager, he never signed his players to formal contracts — they accepted his word and he honored it.

He received his first pair of skates at the age of 10 and two years later his mother gave him his first hockey stick.

When he was 13, he became a stick boy in Montreal for Ottawa's famed Silver Seven.

GOOD ENOUGH

"There were seven men on their team and I lived to see the day when I was good enough to play against four of them," Lester recalled recently.

A year later, he was playing hockey in earnest on one of the "Street" teams in Montreal when every street had a team.

"It was quite something," Lester once reminisced. "We got pretty good and I was picked on the street all-star team."

Likely, Herter Warns

WASHINGTON (AP) —

United States State Secretary Christian A. Herter said Wednesday the Communist bloc likely will launch new "probing" action, especially in the Far East.

Herter coupled this warning with a fresh denunciation of Red China's government as an outlaw regime intent on grabbing its smaller neighbors by force.

Herter outlined his views at a closed-door strategy meeting of representatives of the eight Southeast Asia Treaty Organization members.

A spokesman reported the gist of Herter's remarks after the conference examined the outlook in the wake of Russia's blip at the Paris summit meeting.

The secretary's strongly worded attack on the Peking regime, informants said, was aimed at answering New Zealand's Prime Minister Walter Nash.

Race Bias Outlawed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city bylaw providing for a $100 fine or up to two months imprisonment for any licensed business in Vancouver refusing service to a person on racial grounds was approved Tuesday night despite opposition terming it "undemocratic."

A company spokesman said the old mine, abandoned many years ago, is fairly deep and that there is a good chance the men have plenty of air.

An air force helicopter is expected to leave Vancouver today to assist in the rescue. Bad weather grounded the helicopter Tuesday night.

Pat McDonald was in the mine tunnel when the log supports gave way. His father, Percy, and nephew, Percy McDonald, Jr., were at the entrance. His father is believed to have run into the mine while Percy, Jr., ran out.

TAPPED LINE

John McKelvey of White Rock, B.C., who was outside at the time, tapped into a telephone line running near the mine and advised officials in this mining centre 120 miles north of Vancouver.

Mining officials at Vancouver said they understood tapping had been heard through the cave-in and believed both men inside were safe.

City to Vancouver —Right Downtown

A downtown-to-downtown helicopter service between Victoria and Vancouver next year appeared certain last night when it was announced from Vancouver that financing arrangements are assured.

Steps are in progress to merge Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., which has been planning the service for some time, with Britain's huge Bristol Aeroplane Co. Ltd.

PUT UP MONEY

One of the main terms of the deal is that the British company will put up money for the Victoria-Vancouver service, which requires an investment of about $4,000,000.

Okanagan Helicopters is now completing aircraft and route studies for the service.

NO OBSTACLE

Okanagan president Glenn McPherson said earlier this week that the studies so far show no obstacle to inaugurating the inter-city service some time in 1961.

Studies are being made of Sikorsky and Vertol aircraft. The company plans to operate a 25-minute service between Victoria and Vancouver.

FIRM DATE

Now that financing appears certain, company officials are expected to announce soon a firm starting date for the service.

Final details of the Bristol-Okanagan merger are expected within 90 days, it was announced at a press conference in Vancouver.

By then Canadian Bristol is expected to make an offer to purchase all outstanding shares of Okanagan Helicopters at $4.50 a share "in cash or other valuable consideration."

Murdered

Uncovered

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters) — The bodies of murdered victims of the ousted Adnan Menderes regime have been found in common graves and refrigeration chambers here and in Istanbul, a revolutionary spokesman said Wednesday.

The spokesman also raised the possibility of members of Menderes' regime facing death sentences for murder.

He said most of the bodies were of students.

'Didn't Know About Spying'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration knew nothing about espionage operations of the U-2 spy plane, Senate investigators were told Wednesday by Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy administrator.

He said the agency used information from the Central Intelligence Agency when it claimed the U-2 was on a weather reconnaissance flight.

Freedom Works

'Points to Peace'

Adlai's Strategy

CHICAGO (AP) — Adlai Stevenson Wednesday outlined a five-point "grand strategy for peace."

He urged the United States to adopt such a program to "recover the initiative in the cold war" and "restore confidence in American leadership."

The Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956 submitted a plan looking toward general and complete disarmament under international control.

He proposed that the U.S.:
● Build up "deterrent power and a limited war capability with our NATO allies that does not depend on the budget bureaucrats."

● Strengthen the Western alliance by "building a stronger political and economic community in the free world" and setting up an Atlantic council.

● Join in a long-range aid program for poor countries.

● Make it plain that general and complete disarmament under international control is "an imperative for all of us."

● Show the world that freedom works in the United States in meeting needs for schooling, research, health, housing and all forms of public services.

Psychologists Against Discipline
'Major Cause of Delinquency'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A retired school principal said Wednesday he believes that social scientists are among the greatest contributors to juvenile delinquency.

Stanley Meadows, 70, a school principal and teacher for 44 years, told an open forum at the B.C. Corrections Association meeting that psychologists and others in the social sciences are doing an important job.

Many, however, were not helping matters in the field of education and disciplining of youth.

Children need and appreciate discipline, he said.

"Contributing to juvenile delinquency is a crime in our country," he continued. "Yet among the greatest contributors to juvenile delinquency today are the social scientists who have been allowed to paint a policy of permissiveness and have given the kids a bum steer."

Peace Hydro Could Doom Fraser Fish

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The proposed Wenner-Gren Peace River hydro development could be disastrous to the Peace River fishery, if a permanent or periodic diversion of water from the Peace system to the Fraser system results, the provincial government has been warned by fishery management officials, who indicate such a diversion would be possible.

Big fear is that the project could cause a reverse in the water table that would see northern pike, whitefish, pickering and other fish common to the Peace system enter the Fraser system.

Fishery officials have stated that they do not know exactly what would happen if the fish

LESTER PATRICK, LEFT, SON'S LYNN, CENTRE, AND MUZZ

Tributes to Late Lester Patrick Pour In from Near and Far

North America's hockey men paused in their off-season pursuits last night, in tribute to Lester Patrick who died at the age of 76 in Victoria's Jubilee Hospital Wednesday afternoon.

Soon after the dinner hour in Victoria, the Canadian Press wire service teletypes were chattering with tributes from the length and breadth of Canada and the United States.

Telephone calls to and from hockey players and executives on the Pacific Coast confirmed the obvious—the game loved and will miss the old Silver Fox of hockey.

Al Leader:
Western Hockey League president Al Leader, speaking from his Seattle home, said: "Lester Patrick was the finest man I have ever known in hockey. Whenever I needed help or advice I went to Lester. Hockey could never have repaid him for all the things he did for the game."

Hal Laycoe:
Hal Laycoe, general manager and coach of Victoria Cougars the past season and now coach of the new Portland entry in the Western League, said from Victoria: "I knew Mr. Patrick for many years and will remember him as a good friend. He enjoyed much success in every phase of professional hockey. It would be difficult for anyone to contribute more to the game than he did."

In 1945 Laycoe was signed by Lester to his first professional contract with the New York Rangers. Already playing with the Rangers then were Lynn and Muzz Patrick.

Ed Dorohoy:
Eddie Dorohoy, colorful star of the Western League with Vancouver Canucks and who played at Victoria for seven seasons, said from his home here: "Mr. Patrick was the finest man I have ever played for. It was a pleasure working under him. He gave me my first coaching job in the 1952-53 season with Victoria and I'll never forget the guidance and experience he gave me. "Lester had time for everyone. When I came out of hospital after breaking my leg last winter, he was the first person to phone. Mr. Patrick had just come out of the hospital himself at that time." And from the wire:

Clarence Campbell:
MONTREAL (CP)—Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Wednesday night the death of Lester Patrick "removes one of the few remaining links with the early days of the game." He expressed regret that, because of the immensity of the annual NHL convention, he will be unable to attend the funeral of the legendary Silver Fox. The convention opens here Monday. The NHL will be officially represented at the funeral by Walter Brown, president of the Boston Bruins and chairman of the league's board of governors.

In a statement Wednesday night, Mr. Campbell said: "I don't think it is possible to describe fully the many contributions which he made to the game throughout his lifetime as player, coach, manager, team owner, league governor and, more recently, chairman of the selection committee of the Hockey Hall of Fame. "He was identified with most of the major developments in the style of play, the organization and expansion of the game down to the time of his retirement a few years ago. "One of hockey's real immortals is gone and I know that I have lost a very good personal friend."

Tommy Gorman:
OTTAWA (CP)—T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, harness racing promoter and former hockey manager, paid tribute to Lester Patrick Wednesday night as "always a wonderful man in every respect." Gorman managed the old New York Americans while Lester was managing the New York Rangers. "We were keen opponents and bitter rivals, but always great friends," he said. Patrick, he said, was "always a great opponent—a grand person in every way."

Red Dutton:
CALGARY (CP)—Red Dutton, ex-president of the National Hockey League and longtime associate of the late Lester Patrick, said Wednesday Patrick was a "maker of men." Dutton said the Silver Fox of hockey "did more for young men than most men do." "He was a great man, a great competitor, and a great gentleman."

Cyclone Taylor:
VANCOUVER (CP)—Old-time hockey great Fred (Cyclone) Taylor said Wednesday he, "along with the rest of Canada's athletic world," is paying tribute to Lester Patrick.

"I have known Lester intimately since 1903 when he was with Brandon and I played for Portage La Prairie in the Manitoba Senior Amateur League," said Taylor, "and we were once together on the same team—the old Renfrew Brigadiers. "Since then Lester has gone to the top in every phase of the game, and I am deeply sorry to hear of his death. I am quite sure we will never really see him again," Taylor said from his Vancouver home.

Alex Shibicky:
Alex Shibicky, who broke in under Patrick and went on to become an NHL star with New York Rangers, said: "Hockey has lost one of its greatest friends. Everyone gained something from him."

Newsy Lalonde:
MONTREAL (CP)—Old-time hockey great Newsy Lalonde, a member of the game's Hall of Fame, Wednesday night paid high tribute to Lester Patrick, and recalled moments in their illustrious careers when their paths crossed.

"I am quite saddened by the news," he said. "I have lost a good friend and we all know what wonderful things he has done for hockey." If Patrick had not been around on one particular spring night in Victoria in 1924 or 1925, my coaching career might have reached a more glorious height than was, alas, the case," Newsy recalled.

Saskatoon Shieks, under playing coach Lalonde, and Victoria, with Patrick in the lineup, were meeting in the decisive game for the Western League title. "Lester appeared out of nowhere with the puck, tore down right wing, got through three or four of our players and rifled a long shot past (George) Hainsworth. That was that. It was near the end of the third period and Victoria won the game 1-0."

"Whenever I look back on my career I always think of Lester, because he represented to me all the finest things about the game. He was a tremendous skater and stick-handler, he always played hard—a real never-say-die type—and he was a fine gentleman on and off the ice."

Billy Hewitt:
TORONTO (CP)—W. A. (Billy) Hewitt, registrar of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for more than 50 years, Wednesday night said Lester Patrick did more for hockey than any other individual. "He was the greatest man in hockey," said Hewitt, "the dean of them all."

Cy Denneny:
OTTAWA (CP)—Cy Denneny, a member of hockey's hall of fame and veteran of 12 years in the National Hockey League in the 1920s and early 1930s, said Wednesday night Lester Patrick was "a man I always looked up to."

Silver Fox Dies...

next year. He stayed at McGill University only one year—"I failed, that's all," he explained—and then joined his father's wood and coal company.

BIG-BONED
A tall, big-boned player with a mop of hair that was later to turn silver and earn him his nickname, he broke into major hockey in 1903 as a defenceman with Brandon, Man., and in that year played against the Silver Seven in a Stanley Cup series won by Ottawa.

Patrick started on defence from that time until he was 39 and he played on or managed 15 teams in Stanley Cup finals. At 44, when he was coach of New York Rangers, he made a one-game comeback in the unfamiliar position of goaltender.

EYE INJURY
When Ranger goalie Lorne Chabot suffered an eye injury, Patrick went into the nets himself and beat the Montreal Maroons, allowing only one goal in one of hockey's legendary feats.

In 1909, Patrick moved to Nelson, B.C., with his family, but returned to the east with Frank to play for $3,000 a season with Renfrew Millionaires.

The Patrick brothers later returned to the Pacific Coast, persuaded their father to back them in introduction of the pro game, and built Canada's first artificial ice plants in Vancouver and Victoria. They launched the Pacific Coast League in 1911 and it remained in constant operation as a major league until 1926, when the Patricks sold their teams to the NHL.

UNDER WIRE
Lester got under the wire with a Stanley Cup for Victoria in 1924-25. Lester moved with the tide, going to New York to manage Rangers, where he welded such stars as Frank Boucher, Bill and Bun Cook, Ching Johnson and Taffy Abel into one of the finest teams of all time.

He retired from Rangers in 1946 and the following year received a rare tribute when, before one of the largest gatherings of hockey notables ever assembled in the Garden he received the scroll of membership in hockey's Hall of Fame at Kingston, Ont., to which he had been elected the previous February.

REVIVED COUGARS
Lester retired to his home in Victoria, and had been there but a short time when he re-activated the famed Victoria Cougars this time in the Western Hockey League. But by 1956 he was really ready to retire.

From that time on, he followed hockey through the newspaper columns, seldom attending a game and making infrequent appearances at hockey gatherings. When the National League games began reaching here on television, he became a regular Saturday night viewer.

GOOD HEALTH
Always a man who enjoyed the good health of an athlete, he was taken to hospital last fall with pneumonia, but two weeks after being admitted was sitting up in bed and on the road to recovery.

He entered hospital again recently suffering from recurring cancer, and died yesterday afternoon.

Until he was admitted to hospital for the last time he took long walks in the sunshine and meticulously worked in his garden.

GOOD TO ME
Once asked if he would be a hockey player again, he replied: "I'd go through it all again, yes, I would. Hockey has been very good to me and very kind."

"But then maybe I'd like to be a criminal lawyer. That's what I always wanted to be. I used to hang around the courts, imagining myself up there in the lawyer's shoes."

Another of his favorite pastimes was watching lacrosse. He and his wife were ardent fans.

DOG-EAT-DOG
Although he said he respected hockey and its players "more than any other sport in the world," Lester recently confessed that it has become a "dog-eat-dog" game.

"It is dangerous and the number of injuries are increasing and so are their seriousness." He seldom talked about his success in hockey. One of his favorite boasts was that he saw Joe Louis fight 10 times. Another of Lester's conversation pieces was his nine grandchildren. His sons, Lynn and Murray, are both general managers of National Hockey League teams.

"I always make a point of getting down to the east and New York at least once every two years. It's always in the winter when I can take the grandchildren to hockey games."

He is also survived by his widow, Grace; two sisters, Mrs. W. Scott, and Mrs. G. A. Strickland, and three brothers, Frank, Guy and Stan, all of Vancouver.

Civic Leaders Join In Patrick Tribute

Provincial and civic leaders joined in paying tribute to the late Lester Patrick, one of the outstanding figures in the history of hockey.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner praised Mr. Patrick as "a tremendous figure in Canadian sport."

"The sense of shock felt by his great following across the country is extremely well known at this time," he said. "I never knew Lester Patrick personally, but everyone had the sense of knowing him through hearing of his great exploits."

"EDISON OF HOCKEY"
Mr. Patrick was "the Edison of hockey," according to Dr. David Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation and Canada's outstanding soccer player of the half century.

"His skill and ingenuity, his sportsmanship and the ideas he brought to the game will make him a legend in hockey if he is not a legend already," Dr. Turner said. "Edison patented thousands of inventions. Lester Patrick was like him, constantly coming up with new inventions and improvements for his particular field—hockey."

"Lester Patrick was an old friend of mine of many years' standing and I deeply regret to hear of his passing," said Mayor Percy B. Scurrah. "He was a fine sportsman and a good citizen, and he will be missed by a large number of people."

Chief Constable John Blackstock paid tribute to Mr. Patrick as "a fine man and always a perfect gentleman." "I knew him for years, since before I even joined the police force," he said. "I worked for him as a 'rink rat' in the old arena on Cadboro Bay Road. He was always interested in the good and welfare of his fellow citizens."

Too Many Enter City Golf Test

Members of the Victoria and District Golf Association were faced with a reducing problem Wednesday night when it was disclosed that a record 144 entries had been received for the city amateur championship.

The city championship, scheduled to open Sunday at Uplands with the first two rounds, is limited to 99 entries.

In trimming the list of entries to 99, the association decided to eliminate golfers with high handicap totals.

All players with a handicap of over 11 were first eliminated. Four players with handicaps of 11 were accepted to go with 95 golfers with handicaps of 10 or under.

The draw for Sunday's play will appear in Friday's Colonist.

American Girl Upset

HARLECH, Wales (CP)—Veteran Philomena Garvey of Ireland scored a convincing 3 and 2 upset Wednesday over Joanne Gunderson of the United States and broke U.S. hopes of an all-American final in the British women's amateur golf championship.

Miss Garvey will meet Barbara McIntyre of the U.S. in today's 36-hole final of the classic over the 6,290-yard, par-73 Royal St. David's course.

Young Legs Pace Boxla Win

Victoria Whips Vancouver

By JIM TANG
Fred Wooster stayed on his feet and his teammates used their last night to carry a warning that Victoria can not yet be counted out of the running of the Inter-City Lacrosse League race.

In a heartening display of improvement at a time when another setback might well have been disastrous, the Victorians looked like the club they were at the end of last season in their 11-6 romp over Vancouver before 1,662 Memorial Arena fans.

It was their third win of the season, all over Vancouver, and with only three points between Victoria and New Westminster, the win set up next week's three-game series against the Canadian champions.

Wooster, who appears to have the regular goalkeeping job as his to hold, looked like the top candidate for rookie of the year honors last night.

UNERRING EYE
Resisting temptations to go down, he played alertly, steadily and, often, brilliantly in turning aside 30 of 36 shots and saving trouble several times with an unerring eye for loose balls.

With Wooster holding the fort so well, the Victorians finally made full use of their biggest asset—speed. Showing new hustle and alertness, they snapped up loose balls and snapped back into position when they lost possession for what was without doubt their best two-way performance so far this season.

Most noticeable was the improvement on defence. Getting a bit the worst of it from referees Sid Greenwood and Gogie Stewart—eight of 12 penalties—the Victoria club stopped Vancouver's potent odd-man play cold.

SWINGS PENDULUM
In the nine minutes they were forced to play short-handed, the Islanders came out on top by scoring two goals while conceding but one, and it was their alertness in the last part of the first quarter and the early part of the second which swung the pendulum their way.

Tied at 4-4 after coming from behind three times in the first 11 minutes, the Victoria club got into trouble when Ron Jay and Ed Kowalyk drew simultaneous penalties at 13:40, remained under pressure in the second quarter as Jim McNeill was fenced at 3:52 and Norm Kowalyk followed him off at 5:15.

But it was there the game was won, with Wooster contributing his bit offensively for what might have been the most important goal of the game.

Noting Bob McKee breaking down floor after he had made a stop, Wooster caught the fleet forward with a long pass and McKee made no mistake with the go-ahead goal at 1:03.

There's always someone, it seems, to pop up and earn rating as a "Yankee-killer" and the latest of the breed is Hector Harold "Skinny" Brown, who has been a journeyman pitcher just good enough to stick in the major leagues for 10 seasons.

The 35-year-old Baltimore righthander yesterday came up with the best mound job of a day of baseball featured by excellent pitching—a one-hit, 4-1, win over the inconsistent Yankees.

Brown, always tough for Casey Stengel's crew, was tagged for a home run by Mickey Mantle, the second New York batter, then shut the door from there.

Only Mantle and Yogi Berra, both drawing bases on balls

There, McNeill, looking like the 1959 rookie of the year that he was, took over. The slender forward with the big shot grabbed Al Gill's rebound and scored at 5:52 as Victoria broke away from the gangling attack. He was back at 8:44 with the '74 goal, a pretty play which climaxed a fine night's work for the high-scoring sophomore.

McNeill's first goal, a fine lone effort from a face-off, settled his club down after Vancouver had grabbed a 2-0 lead.

Matching McNeill's three goals and one assist was hard-working Stu Smith, who has come up with six goals in the last two games.

In the fourth inning, reached base against Brown after that one slip. He set down the last 16 men in order for his first-ever one-hitter.

Meanwhile, a rookie shortstop now unexpectedly leading the American League in hitting, came through with the hit Brown needed. Ron Hansen, who prepped last season with Vancouver Mounties, hit his fourth homer in the fifth inning after a walk and an error by pitcher Duke had put two runners on.

BACK HOME
Sam "Toothpick" Jones, back at his home park where he is unbeatable, and Bob Friend, having reclaimed his old role as leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates, accounted for the main pitching heroes in the National League.

Jones, starting, finishing and winning for the fifth time in San Francisco's spanking new Candlestick Park, got the decision over Chicago-rookie Dick Ellsworth only because of unexpected ability with a bat.

Ellsworth had a two-hitter and two out in the ninth inning and the game seemed headed for extra innings when slow-footed Bob Schmidt singled. Ellsworth seemed in no trouble, getting two quick strikes on the weak-hitting Jones. But eyes popped as Jones swung and slammed the ball off the centre-field fence at the 397-foot mark for a game-winning double.

Jones has now pitched a one-hitter, a two-hitter, two three-hitters and yesterday's five-hitter in a 5-0 showing for the home fans. But he is 1-4 away from home for 6-4 for the season.

Friend kept the Pirates in front by a game and a half with the first complete game for the Pittsburgh staff in the last 12. He gave up three hits, walked one and whiffed six in a 5-0 win over Cincinnati Reds.

'No Fear' of Pulp Competition

Still Far from Meeting Home Demand, Say Russians

British Columbia pulp and paper mills need fear no Russian competition in world markets in the foreseeable future.

The head of the Soviet delegation visiting pulp and paper mills in Canada said in an interview here last night "it would be premature for us to think about the possibility of going into world markets."

Georgi Orlov said that "from a technical point of view" the Soviet industry was lagging 15 to 20 years behind its Canadian counterpart. He briefly sketched a gigantic seven-year expansion under way in Russia and predicted even this would not be sufficient to meet domestic requirements.

(When Canadian pulp and paper officials visited Russia last October they discovered production there amounted to 35 pounds of paper products per capita, compared with Canadian and U.S. figures based on population respectively 315 pounds and 350 pounds.)

Mr. Orlov said the industry will pay special attention to manufacture of kraft liner for packaging during the expansion program. He quoted production figures for 1960 of 17,000 tons and predicted by 1965 the figure would exceed the target of 2,100,000 tons "and probably reach 2,500,000 tons."

NOT SUFFICIENT

"We don't think this will be sufficient," he said. "Bear in mind our population is 210,000,000. The growth of our domestic requirements will be much more rapid than the growth of production."

"We don't even think about entering world markets because our production now amounts to only 2,100,000 metric tons of paper and by 1965 it will be 4,200,000 metric tons. This is still too little to satisfy our internal requirements."

WOOD CONTAINERS

Present shortage of paper products for packaging means that 25,000,000 cubic meters of "high quality" board is used to make wooden containers. Some 100,000 workers are employed in making the containers.

RETURN VISIT

Mr. Orlov visited B.C. four years ago as Soviet minister of forest industries. When the industrial ministries were abandoned in 1957 he became vice-president of the state planning committee of the Russian Federation, largest of the 15 republics within the Soviet Union and the area which contains 96 per cent of the logging and pulp industries in Russia.

The delegation visited Alberni, Elk Falls and Crofton mills before coming to Victoria. They will return to Vancouver today.

Russians Praise Crofton Mill

'We'd Double Output With Plant Like This'

CROFTON — Canada is ahead of Russia in pulp and paper mills, but the Soviet Union could get more out of them.

G. M. Orlov, the vice-chairman of the state planning commission of the Russian Republic, made the statement yesterday after a visit to the B.C. Forest Products pulp mill here.

Through an interpreter he said the mill here was the best of the 10 Russians had seen on their tour of the industry in Canada, and added many of the features the group saw here will be used in Russian mills.

BCFP claims the $47,000,000 mill here, with 175,000-ton production a year, is the only single-unit design of its kind in the world. It produces kraft that is later made into such things as drinking cups and bank notes.

At the start of the tour, he said through interpreter Olegue Ponomarev, that pulp mills are "wonderful." After the tour he said Russians could double the production with similar equipment.

At the start he closeted himself and his technical aides with BCFP officials for almost two hours at a meeting that went into the mill's designs so deep that blueprints were brought out.

Mr. Orlov took a whirlwind tour of the buildings, shooting movies as he went while his staff lingered behind making sketches and drawings.

Tractor Flips Backward Onto Driver

DUNCAN — Over-enthusiasm to do farm work sent a 15-year-old high school student to hospital with a broken arm and pelvis.

In good condition yesterday was Matthew Kaspers, Roomer Road, who was pinned beneath a tractor that flipped over backward while he was driving onto a pile of silage.

His brother-in-law, William Koers, on whose Lakes Road farm the accident occurred Tuesday night, said: "He was supposed to stop and let me drive, but he didn't and he drove right onto it."

Two RCMP constables and a neighbor, Ron Stewart, lifted the tractor off.

Ratepayers' Request

Nursing Service For Sproat Lake

SPROAT LAKE — Members of Sproat Lake Ratepayers' Association have decided unanimously to request the institution of a home nursing service in the area.

The decision was made following a report by Dr. C. J. G. MacKenzie, medical director, Vancouver Island Health Unit, who told of the service which was started in the Alberni at the beginning of the month.

Members of the association were told that the service would involve no increase in taxes.

Also on the agenda at the meeting was a talk by Dr. McIvor who operates the flying tanker used by the forest industries for firefighting.

Mr. McIvor said he was anxious that the aircraft, presently based on Sproat Lake, should cause as little disturbance as possible to the residents. He said he would do his best to alleviate the condition after hearing complaints of the amount of wash when the huge craft taxied across the lake surface.

New Liquor Stores Pledged
Shelbourne, Colwood Areas$400,000 Expansion
Set for Shelbourne

Two new liquor stores will be opened this summer at Shelbourne Plaza and Colwood shopping centres.

His hobbies are horticulture and fishing.) ... Bob Reid, a new father, accepting congratulations ... Announcement of the decision to grant the licences, made yesterday afternoon by the B.C. Liquor Control Board, was followed a few hours later by word that Shelbourne Plaza will be the scene of a $400,000 expansion starting in about four weeks.

TWO LOCATIONS

Col. Donald McGuigan, LCB chairman, said yesterday it was the intention of the liquor board to grant applications for licences at the two locations by Capital Holdings Ltd.

No details of the new outlets were immediately available, but the chairman said they would be a "credit to the community." He said a full report would be prepared and the new liquor stores were expected to be in operation before the end of summer.

EXPANSION PLANS

Meanwhile, L. T. Hurst, president of Capital Holdings Ltd., when called in Vancouver gave details of the expansion program at Shelbourne Plaza which will include a bank and several new stores in addition to the liquor outlet.

Mr. Hurst said plans for the extension were nearing completion and work would begin on the site on Shelbourne at Cedar Hill Cross Road before the end of the month. He said the extension will increase the present size by 30 per cent.

The addition will be constructed on land owned by the developers and extend the plaza to Pear Street.

FOR PRESENT

At Colwood for the present there will only be a liquor store added, said Mr. Hurst. He indicated, however, that within "a very short while" an expansion program will be announced there as well.

The twin shopping centres were opened early this year. Mr. Hurst said the reception given them by the public of Greater Victoria was "greater than anticipated."

The developer said granting of licences for liquor outlets at the two shopping centres "was welcomed because we like to have all services in the neighborhood represented at our plazas."

Wrong Impression

Russian Upset
By 'Barbarous'

A visiting Russian forest official is "very upset" over published reports that he believes B.C.'s logging methods are "barbarous" because they are so wasteful. (See also Page 18.)

Officials of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association travelling with the visitors, said in Victoria last night, G. M. Orlov who heads the delegation wished to convey that "methods in wide use here would be considered un-economic in Russia."

They did not deny the Russian interpreter used the term quoted in a news story, but one Russian-speaking member of the group explained "barbarous has at least five different meanings in Russian." He declined to give examples.

Grass-CuttingHoping
To Cut
Costs

Parks committee of city council will call for tenders on cutting and watering of greens and boulevards to see if the work could be done more cheaply than by the parks department.

This decision yesterday, and the decision of public works committee Monday to call for tenders on maintenance and operation of street-lighting, are the outcome of suggestions at budget-time that contractors might be able to supply some services at a saving.

SPECIFICATIONS

Parks administrator W. H. Warren submitted to parks committee a set of specifications which would have entailed a contractor taking almost complete care of parks and boulevards, but the committee settled on seeking bids only for watering, at a frequency to be recommended by Mr. Warren, and cutting, with the provision that grass must not be allowed to grow longer than three inches.

The committee rejected a suggestion from Mr. Warren that the Maritime Museum at Esquimalt be given the crumpled bilge-keel of HMS Amphion. The keel was placed in Beacon Hill Park after the ship hit a reef in 1889.

AT MUSEUM

More people would see it at the museum, Mr. Warren suggested.

"But it's ours, and it's in our park," said chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney.

The committee also decided to ask for a statement on the number and description of games and on charges for rides or amusements before giving a circus permission to use Victoria West Park July 11 and 12.

A cigar-shaped, glowing object was seen by two Victoria residents about 9 p.m. last night, but officials of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory say they didn't see a thing.

Tom Nixon, 5529 Alderly Road, reported what "looked like a comet, travelling in a north-northwest direction and moving sideways at the same time."

"I watched it for four minutes. It had about a 20-foot tail and was a golden color. It could have been a rocket."

Another man who did not wish to be identified described the object as "long and yellowish gold."

"I watched it for about two minutes and it disappeared into a cloud," he said.

The 24 directors approved a motion that the resignation by the exhibition president be not accepted.

Mr. Kerrone has resigned from city council. He is on bail and is charged with setting fire to a house.

Directors felt that Mr. Kerrone should not resign because of the "value" of his work for the newly-formed exhibition. The president was not present during the discussion when Harold Whitefield, vice-president, took charge of the meeting.

The Consolidated Family and Juvenile Court of Greater Victoria was established yesterday by provincial order-in-council.

Its operations will start immediately and will take in Victoria city, Oak Bay, Saanich, View Royal and Colwood.

JUDGE BYERS

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said last night that Judge J. A. Byers, who is now judge of the juvenile court in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich, will take on the duties of juvenile and family court judge for the consolidated area.

Appointed deputy judge is Victoria lawyer Harold Alder.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas will continue as judge of the juvenile courts in Esquimalt and Central Saanich.

Mr. Bonner said a probation officer will be made available shortly.

FEW DETAILS

He said there are a few administrative details to be ironed out, but otherwise the court is ready for operation immediately.

The provincial government will pay about 10 per cent of the costs of the court in addition to supplying a probation officer. Other costs will be apportioned on a cost-sharing basis according to population in Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich.

Another Big Effort Today
In Search for Two Men

Royal Canadian Air Force search and rescue forces scheduled another "maximum effort" search today for two Victoria businessmen missing in a Seabee amphibian since last Sunday.

Less than ideal weather conditions hampered searchers to some extent yesterday, and up to 5 a.m. today weather forecasters predicted more low cloud and rain showers over the search area.

FIVE RCAF PLANES

A total of five RCAF planes, one U.S. Coast Guard plane, and two Victoria Flying Services aircraft scoured the Vancouver Island search area yesterday to no avail.

An RCAF spokesman said that when search planes landed at dusk last night a total of 3,074 square miles had been covered in an effort to learn the fate of the co-owners of C & C Taxi Ltd., pilot Cecil Rhodes and passenger Cecil Rawlings.

Rhodes and Rawlings left here Sunday for what was planned as a one-day fishing trip at Nitinat Lake, 70 miles west of Victoria. They are known to have taken off from the lake about 1 p.m. the same day.

Searchers estimate that when the plane left Nitinat Lake it carried enough fuel to take it about 200 miles. But poor weather which settled over the west coast area at about the same time brought hopes the men might have made an emergency landing on a lake too small to take-off from.

Most lakes in the search area had been scanned from the air by last night and a foot search was undertaken in the vicinity of one lake following reports that nearby fishermen had heard an explosion there on Sunday.

William Sylvester, president of Victoria Flying Services, who flew for five hours over the search area yesterday said last night, "I still haven't given up hope by any means."

But he added, "I don't like the looks of it."

TWO AIRCRAFT

He said his company will send two aircraft on the search again today.

Both men are reported to be accomplished woodsmen and easily able to survive any ordeal in the woods if they survived an emergency landing.

Lester Patrick Legend in His Time

Won Fame As Player, Manager

The Silver Fox of hockey is dead.

Lester Patrick, whose climb from stick boy to the hockey Hall of Fame made him a legend in his own time, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday. He was 76 and had been in failing health for several months.

Four years ago he retired from active participation in hockey, a sport with which he was directly associated for more than 50 years and upon which he has left the Patrick influence indelibly imprinted.

PLAYING STAR

The most conspicuously successful of a family notable on the Canadian hockey scene, Patrick was a playing star from his early youth until he was 39 and became one of the most resourceful managers the game has ever known.

He inaugurated the game's first major farm system; devised, with his brother Frank, the profitable playoff system still used and dozens of rule improvements, and helped introduce professional hockey to British Columbia.

He climaxed his career with the vice-presidency of Madison Square Garden, a tribute to his vital part in the success of hockey in New York, where his two sons, Murray and Lynn, starred as players.

Today, Murray (Muzz) Patrick is vice-president and general manager of the Rangers and Lynn holds the same post with Boston Bruins, keeping the Patrick name active in the National Hockey League. They have been here since their father became ill again last week.

Lester was born Dec. 30, 1883, in Drummondville, Que., the first of nine sons of Joseph Patrick, an Irishman and stout Methodist storekeeper and lumberman.

MAN OF INTEGRITY

Against this background and with a tolerance developed as he grew up among French-Canadians, Patrick later earned a reputation as a man of integrity and unlimited moral courage. For many years when he was a manager, he never signed his players to formal contracts — they accepted his word and he honored it.

He received his first pair of skates at the age of 10 and two years later his mother gave him his first hockey stick.

When he was 13, he became stick boy in Montreal for Ottawa's famed Silver Seven.

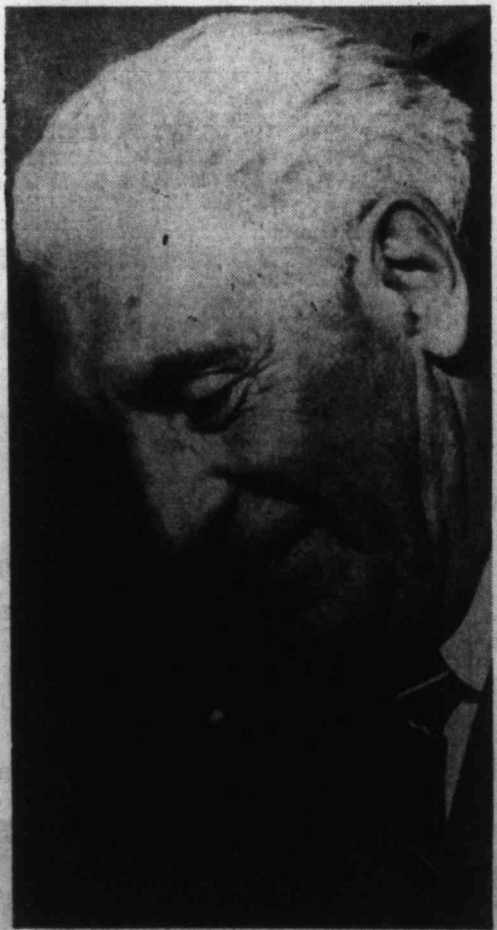

GOOD ENOUGH

"There were seven men on their team and I lived to see the day when I was good enough to play against four of them," Lester recalled recently.

A year later, he was playing hockey in earnest on one of the "Street" teams in Montreal when every street had a team. "It was quite something," Lester once reminisced. "We got pretty good and I was picked on the street all-star team."

Lester graduated from Montreal High School at 16 and entered McGill University the

COPTER SERVICE SURE FOR CITY

Financing Completed

A downtown-to-downtown helicopter service between Victoria and Vancouver next year appeared certain last night when it was announced from Vancouver that financing arrangements are assured.

Steps are in progress to merge Okanagan Helicopters Ltd., which has been planning the service for some time, with Britain's huge Bristol Aeroplane Co. Ltd.

PUT UP MONEY

One of the main terms of the deal is that the British company will put up money for the Victoria-Vancouver service, which requires an investment of about $4,000,000.

Okanagan Helicopters is now completing aircraft and route studies for the service.

NO OBSTACLE

Okanagan president Glenn McPherson said earlier this week that the studies so far show no obstacle to inaugurating the inter-city service some time in 1961.

Studies are being made of Sikorsky and Vertol aircraft. The company plans to operate a 25-minute service between Victoria and Vancouver.

FIRM DATE

Now that financing appears certain, company officials are expected to announce soon a firm starting date for the service.

Final details of the Bristol-Okanagan merger are expected within 90 days, it was announced at a press conference in Vancouver.

By then Canadian Bristol is expected to make an offer to purchase all outstanding shares of Okanagan Helicopters at $4.50 a share "in cash or other valuable consideration."

He said most of the bodies were of students.

Freedom Works

'Points to Peace' Adlai's Strategy

CHICAGO (AP) — Adlai Stevenson Wednesday outlined a five-point "grand strategy for peace."

He urged the United States to adopt such a program to "recover the initiative in the cold war" and "restore confidence in American leadership."

The Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956 submitted a plan looking toward general and complete disarmament under international control.

He proposed that the U.S. build up "deterrent power and a limited war capability with our NATO allies that does not depend on the budget bureaucrats."

● Strengthen the Western alliance by "building a stronger political and economic community in the free world" and setting up an Atlantic council.

● Join in a long-range aid program for poor countries.

● Make it plain that general and complete disarmament under international control is "an imperative for all of us."

● Show the world that freedom works in the United States in meeting needs for schooling, research, health, housing and all forms of public services.

China Denounced

New Red Far East Crisis Likely, Herter Warns

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States State Secretary Christian A. Herter said Wednesday the Communist bloc likely will launch new "probing" action, especially in the Far East.

Herter coupled this warning with a fresh denunciation of Red China's government as an outlaw regime intent on grabbing its smaller neighbors by force.

Herter outlined his views at a closed-door strategy meeting of representatives of the eight Southeast Asia Treaty Organization members.

A spokesman reported the gist of Herter's remarks after the conference examined the outlook in the wake of Russia's blowup at the Paris summit meeting.

The secretary's strongly worded attack on the Peking regime, informants said, was aimed at answering New Zealand's Prime Minister Walter Nash.

Nash is reported to have suggested to the meeting that Red China's membership in the UN might help calm the tense post-summit outlook.

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The proposed Wenner-Gren Peace River hydro development could be disastrous to the Peace River fishery, if a permanent or periodic diversion of water from the Peace system to the Fraser system results, the provincial government has been warned by fishery management officials, who indicate such a diversion would be possible.

Big fear is that the project could cause a reverse in the water table that would see northern pike, whitefish, pickrel and other fish common to the Peace system enter the Fraser system.

Fishery officials have stated that they do not know exactly what would happen if the fish were transferred from one river system to another. "The effect could be explosive," warned one official, "in their natural habitat parasites are
